Little relief before Sunday from the severe cold wave which has held three-fourths of the nation in its grip for three days and caused 100 deaths was seen today by weather forecasters.

It was two degree warmer in Mansfield this morning than yesterday morning, however, with mercury at 6 above zero early today as compared with four above yesterday.

11 Degree Average.

The prediction was for continued cold tonight and Saturday with overcast skies Saturday holding a threat of more snow. Yesterday's average reading in Mansfield was 11.5 degrees as compared with the normal 27.7.

Mansfield temperature readings today virtually paralleled those of yesterday, the city's coldest Dec. 9 since 1927. At noon the mercury had crawled up to 12 above, the same as yesterday's noon reading, Observer Otto Sprunger reported.

Snow Due Tonight.

Snow flurries were forecast for the northern and central sections of the state tonight, as the record cold wave moves eastward. The state, already coated in at least four inches of snow and ice, had cleared most of its highways and streets.

Demands for relief were boosted by the bitter cold, and requests for coal and clothing flooded the Richland county relief headquarters and the county commissioners' office.

Relief officials said they were handling "all eligible cases," however, but looked with uncertainty to the future unless relief from the cold and more direct aid funds come soon.

Deaths in the nation included four in Ohio and were attributed to fires, exposure and highways

Waring Singer In Benefit Show

Jane Wilson, Mansfield girl, who is a singer with the Fred Waring band, will be one of the stellar attractions of "The Passing Parade of 1937", the annual Christmas basket show at the Ohio theater Dec. 18.

A lyric soprano with operatic ambitions, she sings popular songs in an unusual manner. She rejoins the Waring show after Christmas in New York, where the band opens at the Paramount theater Dec. 29.

Mansfield Singing 'Find' To Appear In Yule Show

Jane Wilson, Now With Waring Band, and Due for Debut In New York, Joins 'Passing Parade.'

A Mansfield girl who is "on her way up" will hold the spotlight for a few dazzling moments in "The Passing Parade of 1937," the annual Christmas benefit show at the Ohio theater Dec. 18 at midnight.

She is Jane Wilson, now singing with the Fred Waring orchestra. Jane will be one of the brightest attractions of the Christmas show. And if Jane herself has any qualms about her part in the show, the director of the orchestra, R. A. Richards, has not. Ask him how she's getting along in rehearsals, and he positively purrs.

"That little gal," he says, "has everything! When she sings that Spanish number 'Siboney' you can just see the microphone melt right down to the floor, and her other number, 'Getting Sentimental Over You' is a honey."

She'll Sing In New York.

Jane is home while the Waring orchestra is on vacation, but will report to the famous band leader at the Paramount theater in New York the latter part of the month, for the Waring opening at that theater on Dec. 29. She joined the Waring show early in November after the leader had heard her sing in Cleve-

VOTE DUE TODAY

House to Ballot on New Crop Control Measure.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— House chieftains, openly confident of victory, held their forces in line for a final vote late today on the long-debated crop control program.

They expected not only to pass the bill by a comfortable margin but to reinstate compulsory marketing quotas on wheat, leaving the measure in substantially the form drafted by the agriculture committee.

New delays in senate debate, however, created doubts that the farm legislation could be enacted during the special session.

Before the final house roll call, Chairman Jones (D., Tex.) of the agriculture committee granted two hours of debate on a substitute bill to guarantee each farmer a cash income equal to his cost of production. Even its supporters had little hope of success.

The administration program would seek to regulate the size of major crops by restricting the amount marketed.

BABY DIES IN BLAZE

ATHENS —(AP)— Mrs. Forest Pierce rescued her four-year-old daughter from her flaming home near Nelsonville yesterday, but was unable to re-enter the building to save her nine-month-old son. The fire resulted when oil the mother used to start a fire exploded.

Won't Seek, Won't Accept Nomination Again, Landon Says

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Former Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas said today he would not be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940 and would not accept the nomination should it be offered to him.

The 1936 nominee made the announcement to newspapermen upon arrival here for the Gridiron club, a newspapermen's organization dinner.

Landon emphasized, however, that his statement did not mean he was withdrawing from politics.

"I am taking this step so I can be more active in Republican party affairs," he said.

Soon after he reached the capitol the governor was invited by a White House secretary, by telephone, to visit President Roosevelt at 4:30 p. m.

The purpose of that conference of two opponents in last year's presidential election was not immediately disclosed. Landon will be accompanied by Senator Capper (R.-Kas.).

BURNED TO DEATH

Rapid Transit Cuts Price of Tokens as Traffic Increases

Activated by the response of riders to the token fare system which it inaugurated Nov. 24, a day more than two weeks ago, the Mansfield Rapid Transit company today announced a decrease in their cost.

Effective Saturday, the tokens will be sold four for 25 cents, or 16 for a dollar, Walter H. Goodenough, general manager of the company announced today. The present rate is five for 25 cents.

Coincidental with the reduction in the cost of the tokens, the weekly dollar passes will be discontinued. Goodenough explained that the introduction of the token fare plan had resulted in a marked drop in the sale of passes, and at the same time a noticeable increase in the number of bus riders. He added that there had been a widespread abuse of the passes.

"The company feels that by reducing the token fare, it will be providing transportation at a lower rate, in most cases, than the weekly pass permitted. At the same time, we expect that it will serve to emphasize the convenience and economy of bus transportation for Mansfield," he said.

Adoption of the new step is in keeping with the company's policy of providing frequent and efficient service, over as large a part of the city as is possible, Goodenough added.

At present, the company is op-

TELLS OF 'FIX'

Witness Says Dingledine Tried To Bribe Trial Jury.

SPRINGFIELD —(AP)— The state was expected to rest today in the first-degree murder trial of Harry Dingledine, 54, for the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Edward H. Furry, after a witness testified Dingledine made an effort to "fix" his jury.

Deputy Sheriff Russell Shirk identified a letter which he said the accused man handed him for delivery to a son-in-law. The letter gave instructions on whom to see to influence the jury," he testified.

FRANCE HUNTS MASS MURDER LEADER, AIDS

'Expert Killer' Jailed, Head of Gang Escapes Police Trap at Paris Hotel.

BLAMED IN FIVE DEATHS

German's Confession In U. S. Dacer's Slaying Leads to Widespread Manhunt.

PARIS — (AP) — The asserted scarfaced chief of an abduction-death syndicate, whose "expert in murder" slew Jean De Koven, Brooklyn dancer, escaped a police net and was sought today by roving patrols along the highways of southeastern France.

With him, police said, were his mistress and a third suspect. Judiciary police first had announced their capture, but later changed this to say the three had fled their hotel at Nantua last night.

Tell of Mystery Call.

The trio fled, police said, after a mysterious telephone call to their apartment.

Authorities identified the alleged leader of the band that sought to build an efficient, profitable business on kidnaping and death as Roger Million, a Frenchman.

His mistress, police said, was a blond Frenchwoman.

The arrest of Million and his companion at Nantua, some 250 miles southeast of Paris, ended a nationwide manhunt. She was known to police as "Renee" or "Colette" Tricot, 27.

Authorities believed Million to be the man who employed Eugene Weidmann, 29-year-old German ex-convict, as the killer for the gang.

It was Weidmann's confession that he strangled Miss De Koven, an American dancer, which led to what is believed complete liquidation of the gang. A fourth member of the original syndicate in crime had been shot to death by the former German ex-convict. Police said the victim was Fritz Frommer.

The killing of Miss De Koven and Frommer were but two of the curly-haired German's con-

KILLED BY TRAIN

New London Farm Youth Dies as Locomotive Hits Auto.

NEW LONDON—Howard Landis, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Landis of near here, was instantly killed at 5 p. m. yesterday when his car was struck by a Big Four passenger train at Jennings crossing, two miles east of New London on the Rochester road.

Landis was employed as a farm hand on the farm of Ed Litchfield, and was returning from New London with a load of feed when the accident occurred.

The car was hurled 100 feet by the impact, and the youth was thrown clear of the wreckage. Huron County Coroner J. D. Bradish said death was caused by a broken neck.

Surviving besides his parents are a brother and two sisters. The body was taken to the Sackett funeral home pending completion of funeral arrangements.

DETROIT—(AP)—For the second time within 36 hours, an automobile sped through an occupied street car safety zone today, killing two men.

The victims were Nicholas Braich, 39, and Leon Ochedowski, 47.

Wednesday night, one woman was killed and 25 persons were injured when an automobile plowed into a safety zone. Nine of the injured still are in hospitals. Assistant Prosecutor Clifford J. Bird recommended a warrant today charging William Marklein, the driver, with manslaughter.

START $39,000 SEWER PROJECT

City and WPA Launch First Part of $260,000 Program Affecting 12 Streets.

With the release of a $260,000 program to improve the city's water and sewer system by state WPA headquarters today, city officials announced that a part of the program would be started next week. This will include the laying of more than two miles of sanitary sewers at the total cost of $39,166.

In all, 12 Mansfield streets will be affected by the sewer program which was launched by former Service-Safety Director Murray D. Shaffer and Alvin M. Mock, city designing engineer, following a survey of the two systems early this year.

As set up, the federal government will provide $27,812, for labor on the sewer job and the sponsor, which is the city and the property owners, will provide $11,354, to meet the cost of materials. Of the sponsors share, the property owners on the streets will be assessed $8,393 and the city will pay the balance.

City council has authorized legislation for the installation of the sewers but has taken no action on an appropriation of $121,802 needed to pay the city's share

CALL STRIKE AT FORD COMPANY

CIO Leaders Charge Discrimination Among Employes.

KANSAS CITY —(AP)— United Automobile Workers of America, a CIO affiliate, called a strike at the Ford assembly plant here today, while 150 police stood guard as a precaution against disorder.

The strike call was announced by a committee of the UAWA local which said the order came from international headquarters because of alleged discrimination in taking back employes after a seasonal lay-off.

The announcement stated that all union men who reported at the plant today would continue at work and join in the strike tomorrow.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — George Hisney, 63, confessed, police said today, that he had beaten his 52-year-old wife, Mary, to death Tuesday night "because dinner wasn't ready." Hisney was arrested after a coroner's jury found his wife had been slain. Authorities said Hisney would be charged with second degree murder.

MARINETTE, Wis.—(AP)— "You are hereby sentenced to 30 days in the county jail;" Justice Frank Duquaine said to Justice Norris Gould. Both are magistrates in the village of Crivitz, Wis.

Gould testified that he did not know to whom the wood belonged, although he realized it was not his.

TRAM RUNS WILD

12 Clevelanders Hurt When Street Car Overturns.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—After racing down a hill and going through a red traffic signal, a runaway street car overturned here today, injuring 12 of its 20 passengers.

The street car turned over at a curve on Cedar hill.

The injured, none believed to be in serious condition, were taken to three hospitals.

Passengers screamed as the car skidded about 100 feet past the curve and upset. Passengers and rescuers broke windows on the upper side of the car to get everybody out.

C. M. Ballou, general manager of the Cleveland Railway company, said the accident was caused by slippery rails.

HURRIES PLAN TO PAY TAXES

Wolfe to Submit Proposal to Council Group In Effort to Avert Penalty.

Working against time, Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe today hoped to lay before county commissioners an acceptable plan of payment of the $4,000 tax bill the city owes, and avert a penalty of some $5,000.

Wolfe said he had worked out a plan of payment of the tax debt, and would submit it to council's finance committee this afternoon for approval, and then place the offer before county commissioners.

Council as a whole will have to approve the plan, Wolfe said, but he expected commissioners would consider the payment plan effective as of today, the last day on which the Wittemore bill, which permits installment payment of delinquent taxes without interest, is in force.

Wolfe would not disclose the details of the payment plan until after it has been submitted to the finance committee, but Attorney Marshall Moore, special prosecutor in charge of collecting tax delinquencies, said it called for a down payment, and subsequent installment payments.

Wolfe went over the plan with county commissioners this morning.

The tax debt is for special assessments on the cleaning of two streams and on a plot of land owned by the city for use of the waterworks department.

DEPUTY FINED

SACRAMENTO, Calif.— (AP) — Deputy Sheriff G. S. Craig of Dayton, O., resumed his trip homeward today with a prisoner in tow—but at a more cautious rate after an interlude with the court. TROOPS BLAST ENTRY INTO WALLED CITY

100,000 Japanese Launch Big Attack as Chinese Reject Demand to Surrender.

50 PLANES DROP BOMBS

Nippon Officer Says Troops Fighting In Streets, Holds Victory Near.

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Japanese forces struck from all sides of Nanking in a general attack which the Japanese spokesman declared tonight had put the Chinese capital "in the process of falling."

The attack was launched when the Chinese commander, General Tang Seng-Chi, refused to heed Japanese General Iwane Matsui's ultimatum to surrender the city by noon or face a general assault.

Four hours later Japanese asserted a part of the 100,000 troops encircling the city had captured Purple mountain overlooking Nanking. Chinese positions on the hill previously had kept the Japanese from a frontal assault.

'Assumes' Victory.

Six hours later the Japanese spokesman said he "assumed" that Japanese troops already had penetrated Nanking's Great Wall and were engaged in "mopping up operations," which he explained meant street fighting.

The spokesman said he had no details of the operations.

Asked about his prediction yesterday that Nanking would be captured within 24 hours, he said the Japanese military [illegible] "But the city is in the process of falling."

Earlier today reports from the front said bitter hand-to-hand fighting was in progress outside Nanking's walls.

There was no report on whether Americans inside Nanking were safe.

More than 50 Japanese airplanes supported ground troops in their assault on Nanking.

The American gunboat Panay, with four members of the United States embassy staff, several newspaper correspondents and American civilians on board, came unscathed through a bombardment of the Nanking waterfront.

At Shanghai itself, a group of Chinese representing all Chinese interests and claiming to speak for the city's 3,000,000 Chinese issued a manifesto defying the Japanese conquest.

Effinger Loses First Round In Extradition Fight.

LIMA—(AP)—Defense attorney Clarence C. Miller lost the first round today in a fight to prevent the return of Virgil H. Effinger to Michigan to face criminal charges in connection with Black Legion activities.

Miller argued that the extradition papers were not legally complete, but was overruled by Common Pleas Judge E. E. Everett.

John Ricca, assistant Wayne county, Mich., prosecutor, where the reputed head of the Black Legion is charged with criminal syndicalism and bomb possession, offered Judge Everett the papers which Miller said were missing.

Miller attacked the sufficiency of the criminal syndicalism warrant, contending it was not accompanied by sworn testimony.

School Band To Add Musical Touch To Third Grid Banquet

There will be music to add to the gaiety of The News-Journal "Victory Dinner" for the football squad of Mansfield high school at the Mansfield-Leland hotel at 6:30 p. m. next Wednesday.

A unit of Mansfield's high school snappy marching bandsmen, whose execution of intricate maneuvers were as much of the football game as the game itself, will be on hand Wednesday evening to provide music prior to the banquet.

Of course, it will be impossible to get the entire 100-piece music unit in the banquet room, but J. Merton Holcombe will pick out a group of 35 from the band to add a football atmosphere to the occasion. And of course, the program will consist entirely of football music.

In addition to the band, the drum majors will be on hand to lend their bit to the football party. They will put on an exhibition of baton wielding at the "half"—in the middle of the banquet program.

And that's not all. The cheer leaders will be there, too—to lead the last cheer for the gallant Tygers, who drove through a difficult schedule marred only by one defeat.

All in all, it will be an affair that nobody will want to miss. The principal speaker will be Wil-

CANADA FELLS FIRS FOR YULE

Quebec Farmers Cutting Down Millions of Christmas Trees For Americans.

MONTREAL — (U.P.) — Quebec farmers are cutting millions of Christmas trees, which will adorn homes throughout Canada and the United States during the festive season.

It is estimated that approximately 3,000,000 trees will be shipped this year, and of that number Quebec alone will contribute about 1,000,000. The provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are expected to ship approximately 1,500,000 trees and Ontario the remaining 500,000.

Boston, New York, Philadelphia and cities as far west as Chicago will have Canadian fir trees as Christmas decorations. The trees will be shipped on several hundred railroad flat cars. The price the trees will command is estimated at $2 or more in the United States and will cost about $1 in Canadian cities.

A number of the trees will be cut by companies and neighboring farmers will combine their efforts to load single cars, which will be shipped to various centers for distribution on a commission basis.

In addition to the exported trees approximately a million will be needed for Canadian homes. These trees are usually cut later and hauled by truck to city markets.

The Christmas tree harvesters are looking forward to a good fall of snow and a stiff frost, which would facilitate their seasonal chore. The fir trees are fragile and unless there is a good frost it is feared that the foliage will be badly damaged in handling.

BOY, 11, GETS MEDAL OF VALOR

Cited For Saving Lives of Two, Flattening Self Under Train.

DETROIT —(AP)— An 11-year-old school safety patrolman who saved two pupils and then flattened himself between railroad tracks while a train thundered over him on Oct. 18, has been awarded an American Legion gold medal for valor.

The medalist, William Chundrlik, was hustling the two pupils across the track when his heel became caught in a railroad tie. He pushed them to safety, pulled out of the shoe and "pancaked" into the roadbed just ahead of a train. He was unhurt.

"Sure I was scared," he said. "I knew the train would hit me if I didn't get under it right. I just kind of made myself thin and prayed."

Dorais Mentioned For Michigan Job

Detroit Leader Is First Choice of Students, Alumni to Replace Ousted Harry Kipke—Post Pays Only $7,500.

ANN ARBOR—(U.P.)—The University of Michigan shopped for a new football coach today, while surprised Harry Kipke, who was handed an ouster slip yesterday, tried to decide what he'd do after serving eight years at the Wolverine school.

Unofficial but reliable sources indicated that the university was prepared to pay only $7,500 a year to their football master-mind. This figure is well below the average for a first class gridiron coach.

First choice of students and many alumni was Charles E. "Gus" Dorais, leader of the University of Detroit's football destinies. Dorais won national recognition when he coached the college "all stars" last summer for their game with the Detroit Lions.

Others mentioned prominently included Charles Bachman, Michigan State college; Harry Mehre of Georgia; Gar Davidson of Army; Irwin Uteritz, teammate of Kipke at Michigan 15 years ago and present California backfield coach; Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, and the two All-American Michigan Bennies — Oosterbaan and Friedman. Howard Jones of Southern California and Ray Morrison of Vanderbilt also were mentioned.

The atheletic board delegated Prof. Ralph W. Aigler, board chairman, and Fielding H. Yost, athletic director, to "pick a successor to Kipke without delay."

Meanwhile, Kipke told newspapermen that his plans were indefinite, did not go beyond the annual meeting of the American Football Coaches at New Orleans during the Christmas holidays.

"The announcement comes as a distinct surprise; it's all been rather sudden," he said. "I don't know exactly what I'll do. I have never considered any other coaching job, although I have been approached on several occasions."

In 1932 and 1933 when his teams were riding a four-year win streak Kipke was offered, and turned down, jobs at numerous large schools, including Yale.

Won 46 Games.

During his nine years as head coach, Kipke's elevens won 46 games, lost 26 and played five ties. His system—the "punt, pass and prayer"—became a national byword. He coached five All-Americans.

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Four players were slated today for different berths with the American association under a three-way trade announced by the Indianapolis baseball club. Indianapolis will send Outfielder Fred Berger to St. Paul, which will send Outfielder Bill Norman and Infielder Joe Coscarart to Hollywood, and Hollywood's Outfielder Frank Doljack will come here.

CLEVELAND —(AP)—Johnny Risko, the comebacking "rubberman," declared himself ready today to bounce from Lewis to Louis, champion to champion, and win the heavyweight boxing crown for himself.

Risko, who meets Light-heavyweight Champion John Henry Lewis here next Friday night, said he would fight once a month "until I get Joe Louis in the ring with me."

RED BIRDS DRAFT PITCHER

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The Columbus American association baseball club has drafted Pitcher Clem Dreiswerd from the Richmond Piedmont league club, Secretary Charles Hurth announced today.

Fate of Buckeye Conference To Be Decided In Columbus

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The Buckeye conference, split into bitter factions by three months of wrangling, will determine here tomorrow whether the six member schools will continue as an athletic unit or pursue individual paths.

The current crisis is the third which the Buckeye has faced during its 12-year existence. The first came soon after organization when the member school defied an Ohio conference edict to disband and the second was in 1930 when Wittemberg was dropped for recruiting athletes.

To the rise in power of the Buckeye's two "baby members," Marshall and the University of Dayton, is traced the present turmoil. Marshall and Dayton finished one-two in the 1937 football race and throughout the campaign were bitter targets for two charters members, Miami and Ohio Wesleyan, on the question of subsidization.

SELECTED BY CAMP IN '17

school's first four-letter winner.

While it was on the gridiron where Henry gained undying fame, he was also a prominent figure in basketball, baseball and track. As mentioned previously, he played professional basketball many years after leaving college.

The only other W. & J. athlete to win four letters was Arthur (Red) Rittersbaugh of Canton, who graduated two years ago. And the only other W. & J. athlete to receive All-American mention was Russ Stein, also a tackle, who captained the 1921 team which went to the Rose Bowl and played a scoreless tie with California, the next host in the Pasadena classic.

HENRY was a popular selection for All-America recognition in his senior year in 1919. In addition to the All-America selected by Walter Camp, Henry was honored on the teams picked by Walter Eckersall, Bill Edwards, John Heisman, Knute Rockne, Pop Warner, Andy Kerr, wide-known coaches, and the prominent sports writers, Alan Gould and George Trevor.

The 1919 All-America selected by Camp consisted of Higgins, Penn State, and Miller, Pennsylvania, ends; Henry, W. & J., and West, Colgate, tackles; Alexander, Syracuse, and Youngstrom, Dartmouth, guards; Weaver, Centre, center; McMillin, Centre, quarterback; Casey, Harvard and Harley, Ohio State, halfbacks, and Rodgers, West Virginia, fullback.

Henry's other year on the All-America was in 1917.

HENRY joined the Canton Bulldogs the fall after his graduation to continue his football career. He remained with the Bulldogs until 1926, a period in which two national championships were won.

Pete served as player-coach with the Pottsville, Pa., Maroons the next two years, and retired after the 1927 season which he spent with the New York Giants.

While at Canton, Henry's teammates included Jim Thorpe, Joe Guyon, Bob Higgins, Bill Edwards and Willard Robison of Rutgers, now a world-famous colored singer.

Henry was the Jack Manders of his day in the National league. His ability to drop-kick pulled many games out of fire for the Canton Bulldogs, and he was a member of the all-pro team practically every year he spent in pro football.

HAVING played against virtually all of the greatest stars of his day, Henry is well qualified to select an all-time All-America.

Although there is some question in his mind as to the greatest ends he ever played against, Henry regards Stein, Pittsburgh, center; Comstock, Georgetown, and Anderson, Notre Dame, guards and Lyman, Nebraska, Weir, Nebraska and Sonnonberg, Dartmouth, tackles, as the best linemen he ever faced.

The backs who rate in Henry's estimation are Thorpe, Elliott, who played a Lafayette, and Blood of Notre Dame, who is now a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates pro team.

PETE'S greatest thrill from a personal achievement came in 1916 when W. & J. played Westminster college. Westminster had a great punter in Joe Hoezle, and he was particularly effective in this game.

On one occasion, Hoezle went back to kick, but he never got the kick off. Henry tore in and took the ball right off the toe of Hoezle's foot at the same instant it met the ball. Pete never faltered, never lost his stride as he charged down the field for 40 yards and a touchdown.

Pete says: "The ball plopped right against my stomach and never bounced as I threw my arms around it. I've had a lot of thrills during my playing days, but that one tops them all.

MANSFIELD FOES VIE TONIGHT

A Bi-county league "natural" will headline tonight's two-game schedule. The headline attraction will bring together the two Mansfield entries, Hedges and Simpson junior high quintets, on the Y. M. C. A. court at 7:30 p. m. today.

The Simpson 7th and 8th graders will be seeking their second victory tonight, while the Hedges club will be after its first league triumph. Simpson won over Hayesville last week, while Hedges bowed to Perrysville, which is host to Shelby tonight.

The Hedges lineup will be selected from a group including Harry Phillips, Orland Hoover, Russell Wentz, Roger Myers, Edward Woodbury, Roger Morrow, Fred Glenn, Donald Glenn, Richard Gordon, Robert Pore, Leroy Sheeks and Richard Harding.

Kasoboski and Blake to Meet In Co-Headline Bout at Armory Monday.

ANOTHER bangup lightheavyweight wrestling contest has been signed to co-headline Monday night's wrestling show in the Armory, it was announced today by Tim Nolan, Quality club matchmaker.

Nolan has rematched "Babe" Kasoboski, young Polish boy from Toronto, Ont., and Bob Blake, slashing blond from Columbus, to meet in a two-out-of-three-falls contest with an hour and a half time limit.

Kasoboski and Blake met here recently and the rugged Ohio boy won at the end of a wild match. The Polish lad is a great favorite of local mat fans.

The Great Mephisto will appear in the other match.

Mephisto, ace lightheavyweight, who twice held the world's title, is to meet George Becker, young "German Bomber."

Set For Opening

City League Clubs Ready to Inaugurate Season Monday Night.

CITY CLASS A basketball ledgue teams will open a schedule which is expected to develop into a torrid race at Senior high school Monday night.

Monday's feature attraction will see the strong Yuncker Sports tackling the Westinghouse Electric at 8:30 o'clock. The opening game, scheduled for 7:30, tosses the Ira D. Ling Canzois against the Elks. The latter two combines are new entries in the loop.

Lineups Unchanged.

Considerable interest is being shown by City league followers in the Westinghouse-Yuncker melee. The two outfits will enter the battle with practically the same lineups that last season fought it out for the title. The Yuncker team is comprised of last year's Dominion club.

The key men of the Sports offense are Al Stickler and lanky Tom Farrell, veteran Class A league stars. Stickler will have Bob Bogantz, erstwhile Ontario ace, as his running mate at the forward posts, while Farrell will be at the pivot position. For the guard positions Manager Jimmy Berers has Jack Miner, Harold Hayter and Munster

Missing from the Westies' ranks are Bob Bride, Harry Ross and Steve Voelker. As the backbone of the club Vern Jones has Bob Shade, Howard Poole, George Bosko and Tommy Moxley. They are all veterans.

Not much is known of the strength of the new clubs, but according to the rosters of the two outfits, that should develop into title contenders.

Brandon With Elks.

Leading the Elks club will be Adam Brandt, Gene Brandon and Jim Wallace, City league star. Russ Hoff and Noel Morgan, former Mansfield high stars, Dent, Jerry King, John Hall and Wineland. King will act as player-manager.

In the Canzois' lineup are Howard Patterson, a member of last year's crack Ontario club; Dave Arbaugh, George Hummel and Johnny Schuster, two more City league veterans, Joe Atton, Willard Lockhart, Johnny Horvath and Fred Buzard

Three Quints Remain In Tie

Dinger, Rex and Benny Clubs Win Again.

Basketeers of Dinger's Independents, Rex Billiards and Benny's Hi Notes remained deadlocked for possession of first place in the Senior league by chalking up their second consecutive triumphs at the Friendly House last night.

The Hi Notes swamped Zeigler's Independents, 36 to 16, the Rex Billiards smothered Moritz All Stars, 39 to 22, and Dinger's Independents edged the Blue Goose outfit, 28 to 23.

Q Billiards Pound Out 2864 Total as Forsythe Paces Individuals With 640 Count.

THE Q BILLIARDS crawled within a game of first place in the Commercial B league by sweeping their series with the Heilman Grocers at the Meder alleys last night.

The Cuemen accounted for the best individual and team totals as they strengthened their position in the race. Forsythe pumped out a 640 (233-201-206) to pace the individuals, and led the way in the compilation of a 2864 team total. Other high Billiards were Heiser, 604, and Bixby, 603.

Winning two games from the Mansfield Printers, the Untiet Insurance club retained first place. Geiger rolled out a 622 for the Printers.

Second to the Billiards in team scoring was the Mansfield Rugs, who shot a 2732 as they swept their match with the Southern hotel.

In the other matches, the Fifth Street Lunch, led by Stauffer's 611, won two games from the Motor Freights, the Yuncker Sports took three tilts from the Burger Dairys and the HalBark Clothiers added a pair of wins at the expense of the Willis Billiards.

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 12 is I John 1:1-7 and Revelation 21:1-7, the Golden Text being I John 1:3, "Our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.")

At the creation of man Jehovah, his Creator said, "It is not good that man should be alone; I will make him a helpmeet for him." Having been made in the image and likeness of God he was like God in that his nature called for fellowship through which he might express his love

Jesus and Fellowship.

Our Lord Jesus recognized this need of fellowship when he "sent his disciples by two and two." The early church recognized the same in sending forth Barnabas and Saul, Paul and Silas, Barnabas and Mark, Peter and John, etc. This "knitting of the soul of Jonathon with the soul of David" is an expression of one of the most deep-seated and universal characteristics of human nature. And our Lord was so thoroughly human that he shared this trait with us. So we hear him saying to his disciples, "with desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer"; and again, "my soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: abide ye here and watch with me." As Son of God he enjoyed fellowship with his Father from eternity. John says, "That which was from the beginning, that which we have heard, that which we have seen with our eyes, that which we beheld, and our hands handled of the word of life, And the life was manifested, and we have seen, and bear witness, and declare unto you the life, the eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us."

The Disciples' Fellowship.

Our Lord's eternal fellowship with his Father, which he extended to include his first disciples is still further broadened to include all who will accept it through faith in him: "That ye also may have fellowship with us: yea, and our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ." The privilege of such a fellowship should move us to want to fit ourselves for it by bringing our lives into harmony with the Divine: "In him is no darkness at all. If we say that we have fellowship with him and walk in the darkness, we lie, and do not the truth: but if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanseth us from all sin." Continual striving after holiness must result from our desire for fellowship with God. To be with him is to be like him. Fellowship begets likeness. Light has an affinity for light and darkness for darkness Fellowship with the good will strengthens the good within us. So Christ established his church for the strengthening effect of its fellowship upon his disciples. Together the coals burn with light and warmth, while scattered to themselves the fire goes out.

Eternal Fellowship.

Death does not destroy this fellowship It persists beyond the grave in the church triumphant: "He shall dwell with them, and they shall be his peoples, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God: and he shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and death shall be no more; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain, any more: the first things are passed away. Behold, I make all things new."

PAINS SOON LEFT JOINTS FOR THIS NURSE

Enthusiastic In Praise of Great Medicine, World's Tonic, for Relief of Constipation and Many Other Troubles

"It is true that my work is hard and nerve-wracking but is a real joy now, since I got relief from those awful pains that seemed to shoot through my body at every turn," said Mrs. Booker, 150 S Pine St, Newark, O, explaining the great benefits to be derived from using this great medicine.

"Really, I felt so bad at times and my muscles and joints were so painful that I thought I'd have to lay off from work. Besides this, my stomach was weak and upset, and after eating I suffered terribly from gas and sour, acid risings that kept me miserable. Also I frequently felt dizzy with little spots before my eyes.

"I began taking World's Tonic and it gave quick relief from stomach trouble; then the other troubles just seemed to gradually fade out Day by day the painful joints grew less painful, my muscles became supple again and it no longer caused pains or aches to stoop and bend over. My digestion picked up so that my food quit turning sour and the gas no longer pressed my heart causing palpitation or short wind. My sleep became deep and restful and I haven't had a dizzy feeling lately.

WORK TO MUSIC

Dayton Plant Finds Workers Pleased With Plan.

DAYTON—(AP)—On the theory that soothing strains or crashing chords have a tendency to reduce fatigue and promote a cheerful frame of mind, a work-to-music program has been inaugurated in one of Dayton's industrial plants.

Started purely as an experiment, the plan has met with such universal popularity that factory officials said it would be continued indefinitely.

Three or four times a day,-for periods of about forty minutes each, radio music or recordings are broadcast through the entire plant. A loud-speaker system is regulated to vary the volume from machine shop to office, so that in each department the music can be heard plainly despite the din of production.

LAUGHS AT GRADES

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Two Broadway producers have accepted the first play of a Hunter College senior, Hilda Koenigsberg. The joke at present, however, is that Miss Koenigsberg is taking a course in playwriting in which she has received only 'fair" grades thus far.

Drum Majors, Cheer Leaders Also to Take Part In 'Victory Banquet.'

bur F. (Pete) Henry, Mansfield's most famous football son, who won All-America honors twice at Washington & Jefferson college, where he is now athletic director.

J. Y. (Jack) Clinton, a big time referee for 28 years, will also be there to tell of his officiating experiences. The more than 500 games he has handled include Army-Navy and Rose Bowl engagements.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, one of the Tygers most ardent followers—and he didn't miss many games this year—will serve as toastmaster.

Only 250 persons can be accomodated at the banquet, so it will be a case of first came, first served, so you'd better buy your tickets early. They are on sale at the office of The News-Journal, Senior high school, Tawse pharmacy and Bates Candy Shop. The price is $1.55, tax included.

MASS MURDER LEADER FLEES

'Expert Killer' Jailed, Head of Wholesale Death Band Escapes Trap.

fessed ventures into wholesale murder. Three other men fell under his gun.

Trace Stolen Checks.

Investigators expressed belief Million, the alleged gang leader, could be identified as a man with whom Weidmann talked in the lobby of a Paris hotel last July before he lured the Brooklyn dancing girl to the band's "villa of death" in suburban St. Cloud.

The detectives also believed Million and the blond were the man and woman who passed several of the $500 worth of traveler's checks which Weidmann took after slaying the American girl.

There was still the possibility, the officers said, of connecting Million and the woman with two of Weidmann's other victims—a taxi driver, Jean Couffy, and a broker.

After the body of the broker, Roger Leblond, was found police said Million and the blond vanished from their Paris apartment.

Upon their return to Paris, investigators said, an effort will be made to learn if the Tricot woman was the blond who vanished after cashing several of Miss De Koven's traveler's checks and who was said to have carried the Brooklyn girl's passport.

The first of the gang's victims, according to Weidmann's confession, was the 22-year-old American girl whose body was unearthed yesterday from under the front porch of a suburban St. Cloud villa.

The strangler's cord was still knotted into the flesh of her neck.

PREDICT COLD WILL CONTINUE

Forecasters Say Little Relief In Sight Until Sunday; More Snow Likely.

made slippery by the snow. Two men froze to death last night in Wyoming when the mercury dropped to 13 below zero. The coldest spot in the nation was Miles City, Mont., which reported 16 below zero.

A strike of construction and service employes caused 2,300 inmates of a hospital for mental patients at Peoria, Ill., to huddle in blankets and coats when the institution's heating plant was shut down.

Nearly an inch of ice formed on the Maumee river at Toledo where the low for the night was 10 above.

Higher temperatures tomorrow were scheduled to alleviate suffering in the southern states where the mercury skidded down to new lows in the past three days, causing a huge loss in the fruit and vegetable crops.

Asheville, N. C., and Louisville, Ky., had the lowest reading today, both reporting 14° above zero. Freezing temperatures reached into Georgia and Alabama.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1937.

There is a real need for moderate-cost homes that will last as long as the mortgage.

A cold wave closed Miami, Fla., schools—the temperature going 'way down to almost the freezing point.

With the various post-season football "bowl" games—Rose, Sugar, Cotton, Orange and Sun—suggestion of a Dust Bowl game is apparently too dry a subject to be discussed.

Powers of the Grand Jury.

SUDDEN and simultaneous clean-ups in Lorain and Elyria offer a striking example of the little realized powers of a grand jury. It took only a warning from the county grand jury to effect an immediate purging of vice and gambling conditions in those two Ohio cities.

The grand jury is among the most powerful of our governmental bodies, with authority to go out and bring in its own evidence, or order it brought in. If inclined, it may even go over the heads of the prosecutor or other officials.

It was such grand jury action that precipitated the recent drastic clean-up of rackets and gangdom in New York City.

Commenting on the work of this New York grand jury, J. C. Furness, writing for the New Republic, noted the increasing frequency with which grand juries are cleaning up bad situations in various cities. He writes:

"The notable fact is this: the substantial citizens of practically every community in the United States legally have a weapon with which to attack civic corruption in any form as effectively as was done in New York. For the famous Dewey prosecution was initiated not by an elected public official, but by a group of independent citizens—among them eight merchants, three bankers, three insurance men, two manufacturers, a warehouse man, a butcher and an engineer—acting under powers as old as common law and as fundamental as freedom of speech.

"The grand jury was an established institution of English law long before the Norman conquest.

"Today its use for the routine indictment of criminals is familiar. But its potentially greater function, as an independent body of citizens inquiring into the condition of their government, has been too commonly neglected.

"As a board of inquiry, it may summon witnesses and public officials, who, because the sessions are secret, may testify fully without fear of reprisal. It may instruct the district attorney to gather evidence; it can call him in and kick him out of its sessions; it can go over his head, and if his conduct is wholly improper, indict him for malfeasance in office.

"So long as it is looking for evidence of crime—which takes in an immense territory—it can dig into anything without so much as a by-your-leave from judge, district attorney, governor or political boss."

To Continue Salesmanship Study.

FOLLOWING the series of lectures and salesmanship classes conducted in Mansfield by Howard J. Wisehaupt, New York business analyst, plans are under way to form a permanent local organization of interested men and women, with weekly meetings for interchange of ideas and continued study of principles and practices of salesmanship.

The field of salesmanship is such a large one, and advantages of study in sales methods are so obvious, that an organization of this kind should provide excellent opportunity for ambitious persons to increase their ability and improve their sales methods, thus performing better service to customers and making greater earnings possible for themselves.

Further steps toward such an organization will be taken at a meeting to be held next Monday evening at 7:30 in the Chamber of Commerce assembly room—to which all who are interested are invited.

Time to Feed the Birds.

CLAMPING DOWN of winter weather, with snow covering the ground, makes life difficult for birds that stay in this section the year round.

With their customary food supply cut off by ice and snow, these birds require human assistance to carry them through the winter months.

Many people have formed the habit of clearing a ground space or providing a suitable feeding place for birds that soon become accustomed to regularly visiting these particular spots.

A piece of suet may be hung on a bough or bush; crumbs or small pieces of bread are eagerly sought by hungry birds.

Those who have not yet adopted the habit of feeding the birds during the winter may be surprised at the pleasure they will find in this little act of kindness.

Economy Through Health.

DR. THOMAS PARRAN, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, urges a national health program. We already know enough about certain diseases, he says, to cut down greatly their yearly toll of death. He regards this not merely as a great humanitarian challenge but as essential to our economic well-being. When people ask him whether the country can afford such a program, he answers that it cannot afford to carry the present load of preventable sickness.

"Ill health is now bad business," he says. "It is possible, by applying the public health knowledge we now have, to cut down greatly the economic losses caused by preventable diseases. It is far less expensive to control these diseases than to continue to pay tax money, charity and insurance dollars for the needlessly sick and premature dead.

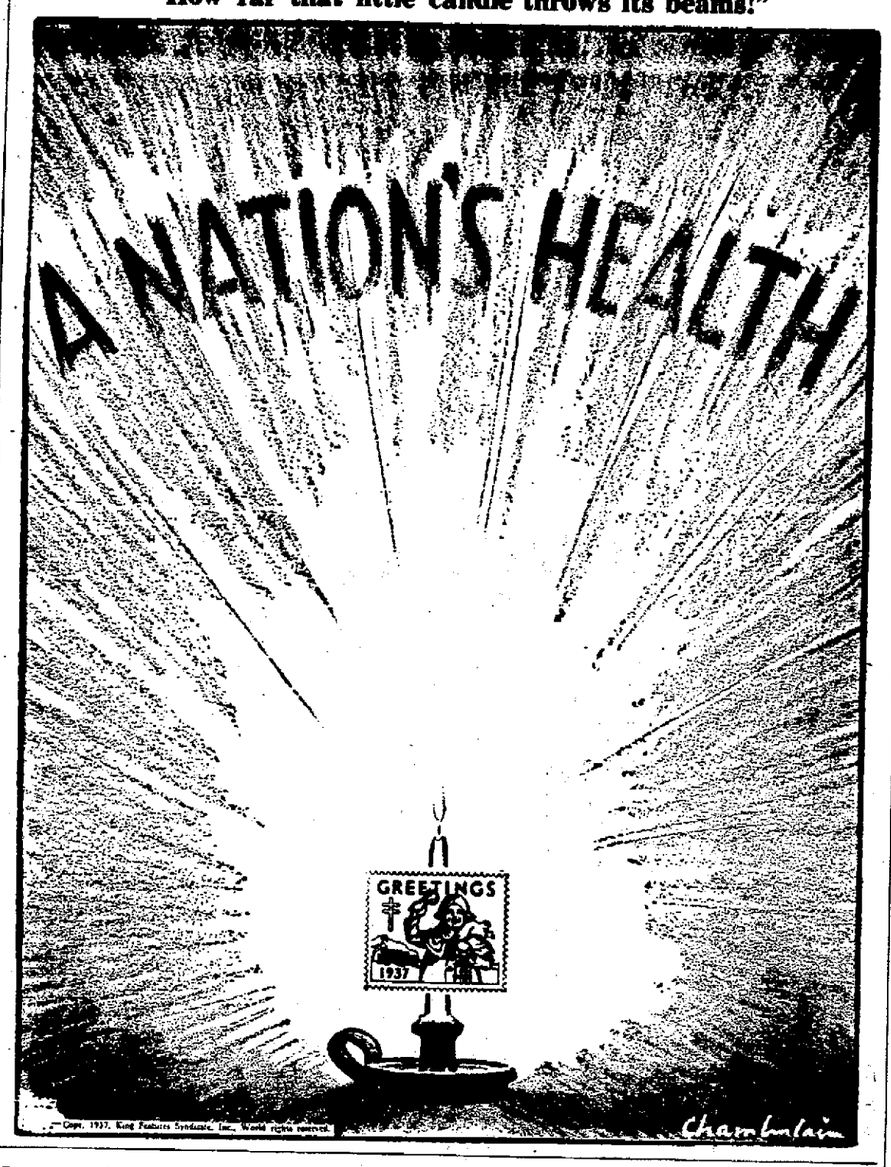
"The money saving would begin immediately. The accumulation of savings in a generation would be vast. It would amortize the money spent to effect this economy."

Many laymen and physicians agree with Dr. Parran's objective but urge caution to avoid extremes of socialized medicine. A middle course should be quite possible if there is wholehearted co-operation between public and private health agencies.

A Cincinnatian who has been wandering through the west, says he can't remember anything that happened in the past two years—much to the envy of taxpayers.

Now that there is a good five-cent cigar, will the present vice president immortalize his name by pointing out some other urgent need?

"How far that little candle throws its beams!"



Question Roosevelt's Ability as Safe Pilot

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt unquestionably did have a tooth pulled. The tooth has not been offered in evidence, but it is not even suspected that the operation never was performed at all.

Plenty of suspicion is expressed, however, that he cut short his recent fishing trip and came back to Washington less because he still had an ache in the place the tooth came from than because he considered his presence in the capital imperative to keep congress in order—if possible.

Generally congress is a headache to the administration. This time it is a toothache.

FROM BOTH SIDES

"F. D." is in the position, in his relationship with the lawmakers, of the well-known individual who is "damned if he does and damned if he doesn't."

Until quite lately he was regared by many orthodox legislators as dangerously to the politico-economic leftward. Now the leftward folk accuse him of having veered so far to the right that they are horrified.

In fact, he has more congressional opposition now than ever he had.

The leftists are antagonized. The rightists are doubtful how long they can depend on him.

DOES HE KNOW CHANNEL?

In short, the national pilot, in congress' opinion, is trying to steer a course of which he is none too sure.

The old-time Mississippi river helmsman kept himself pretty well informed as to the channel ahead. He knew of impending snags and bars and swung his wheel cleverly around them. But if he had no notion what was coming, he was likely to pile up on one of these obstructions: at least to miss them only by a bee's knee, keeping all on board constantly in a twitter.

The administration's congressional crew surmises that Pilot Roosevelt is unfamiliar with his channel—briefly, that he hasn't a clean-cut governmental philosophy, but everlastingly is guessing.

POLITICIANS FRIGHTENED

Indeed, he has said so; has declared for a policy of experimentation.

Few politicians like this, as a regular thing. First the leftist bunch are gratified at each leftward twirl of the wheel, but the rightists are terrified. Then there is a twist to the right and the leftists holler. Finally both groups decide that the whole thing is wobbly and mutually are scared.

Politico-economists are not experimentalists; they are one way or the other.

All that Pilot Roosevelt has back of him is a little crew of do-or-die New Dealers—and even they are scary.

Wouldn't it give anyone a toothache?

INFLATIONISTS REMAIN

The administration assuredly sanctioned a tremendous program of government spending hitherto in the Roosevelt regime. The national debt was piled up to a point which "F. D." himself said is safety's maximum.

So he wants to economize.

The leftists immediately protest. They propose to go on, crazily, indefinitely. It will mean inflation, to a degree where $1 will buy a nickel's worth or less. Nevertheless, there are many of these dotty inflationists. Their version is that wage increases will keep up with rising prices. They will, of course, do no such thing—not until after there has been a convulsion of economic nature.

President Roosevelt naturally opposes such a convulsion. Yet, for four or more years, he boosted for it. He asks economy, but his record is against it.

HOOVER'S PLAN

Government spending?

Away back in the days of the last Republican administration President Hoover advocated a program of federal improvements for periods of economic depression.

There is a deal of such work, he said, that could be saved up for such intervals, to cushion unemployment—for example, public building construction, and the creation of power developments. What Hoover sought was public investment in genuine assets. He never did much to accomplish his end, but his plan seemed reasonable.

STEWART'S VIEW

How has it worked out?

In one way boondoggling—public work that wasn't an asset.

In another way it has produced some assets—TVA, for example, which IS an asset. But the complaint is that such assets are at the expense of private industry—that private industry would have attended to them if they hadn't been forestalled by the government.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Resting Fields.

THE FALLOW FIELDS are lovely, now the crops have gone.

There is a strength and dignity to resting earth—there is a meaning to the naked soil—that you do not feel when it is misted with the spring's bright foam, or mantled with the summer's jeweled growth.

A month or so ago, the corn rows rippled like green silk beneath the sun. Green silk embroidered with the glory of ripe fruit. Great golden pumpkins and the grapes' dark violet . . . the dark blue plums and russet copper of late pears . . . and scarlet apples . . . and the peaches' coral plush. And all the heaped abundance of the garden patch . . . egg plants and carrots and fat, purple cabbage heads. And glittering filagrees of little bugs . . . and iridescent veils of butterflies.

A month or so ago the soil wore regal robes—but now it's bare. One sees it as it is . . . its strong, brown bosom open to the light . . . its purpose stripped of all its masks and veils.

And this, of all the year, I think, is loveliest. And speaks most clearly to the listening heart.

Still soil. I walk across its furrowed rows in moccasins. And through the soles, I feel the pulse of its deep, living strength. I catch the potent odor of its flesh . . . that rough, wild breath that seems to clean and heal the sickly weariness of human blood.

Still fields. Their spring's young beauty and their summer's splendor both have gone . . . the fever and the fury both are done . . . and now they brood . . . and wait for what shall come. And on them there is peace.

So still! The long day passes in a dream. At dawn the light clings low in moist blue weeks . . . at noon, the willows are a pale, bright flame . . . at night, the stars hang tangled in the pines. But nothing moves, along the resting fields. And nothing calls. And yet you know—they wait. And are content.

If only we could take our autumn years like that!

Be satisfied to put aside our masks and veils.

Nor grieve because our spring's bright bloom has gone—

Nor wail because the summer's strife is done—

But be content to be our honest selves—

And wear our resting strength in dignity—

And trust and wait in proud serenity.

The Lindberghs Come Home.

Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh have come home, apparently to spend the holidays. It may be hoped that the passing of the years has helped the wound made by the tragic death of their oldest son. Perhaps it is too much to hope that their privacy will be respected and that they will be treated with the consideration that people give their neighbors. The flocking of crowds to catch a glimpse of celebrities on every possible occasion is one of the unhappy features of American life.

These fine young people deserve to be greeted with a silent "Merry Christmas," and left alone in accordance with their wishes.—Kansas City Times.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL—

Democratic Nations Seen In Retreat.

A WRITER of a column reads scores of newspapers, magazines, books, besides talking with many people to obtain insight and trends. Some of the most interesting facts I read are in The Living Age, whose editors gather them from all over the world.

Here is a summary in The Living Age of the world's present political status as seen by the editors of the magazine:

"Is world democracy's five-year retreat about to become a rout? Certain it is that the rapid progress of the 'lawless' forces will not be halted by warnings or threats. So much is clear from the events of recent weeks. Since President Roosevelt called for a 'quarantine' of the aggressors on Oct. 5 the following victories have been chalked up for the anti-democratic powers:

"Great Britain and France have abandoned the Spanish Loyalists to their fate;

"Soviet Russia, which has co-operated wholeheartedly with the democracies, has been virtually isolated;

"Italy has joined the German-Japanese anti-Communist alliance, which has been proclaimed a World Anti-Communist Front to which other nations are invited to adhere;

"Brazil has become a dictatorship and is being reorganized as a Corporative State;

"The Brussels conference on the Sino-Japanese conflict gave evidence only of its powerlessness to restrain Japan;

"Conservative elements persuaded the British cabinet to dicker privately with Germany on the colonial question—a confession of weakness that invites a new snub, as a satisfactory basis for compromise has not been prepared;

"France, under the tacit or express threat that Japanese forces might occupy the Chinese island of Hainan, curbed the shipment of arms and munitions through Indo-China to the sorely-pressed Chinese.

"To this list there may soon be added other setbacks to democracy, for certain Latin-American and European nations may jump on the anti-Communist bandwagon. Most serious would be defections to Berlin and Rome along the Danube.

"It is hardly necessary to add that the name of the World Anti-Communist Front is misleading—that anti-Communism is only a screen for attempts on the part of the aggressive Powers to win strategic, territorial and material objectives by blackmail or force."

ON OUR "RECESSION"

Next we are given an opinion or two from abroad on our financial setback.

Quoting again from The Living Age:

"A French economist, writing in Europe, Nouvelle, draws two lessons from the Wall Street 'krach'. He finds, first of all, that no matter how powerful economically, a nation may be, it cannot isolate itself from the remainder of the world. The United States has suffered repercussions from the conflict in the Far East and the tension in Europe in spite of the width of the oceans. Other nations, in turn, have suffered repercussions from the slump in Wall Street, and this has been true even of the totalitarian countries, which have been forced to draw on their capital.

"The second lesson this writer draws is that statesmen who are supported by the free ballots of all their people are no more able than dictators who rule by force, to adopt sensational economic measures, without paying the penalties prescribed by the laws of economics."

HEAVY ITALIAN BURDEN

"Italians are having to go deeper into their pockets to pay for their huge armaments, reclamation projects, the never-ending drain of Ethiopia and intervention in Spain," says The Living Age. "Moreover, this year's unfavorable trade balance will be the largest since 1930; and it will not be offset by 'invisible income' from abroad to anywhere near the extent it was seven years ago."

GUERRILLA WAR?

Can China eventually oust the Japanese by guerrilla warfare?

"No," says a writer in The Living Age. "The Chinese face tremendous odds because Japan controls the air, and the airplane has made Fabian and guerrilla tactics far less effective than they once were."

ASIA UNDERNOURISHED

Now here is the final quotation from The Living Age:

"At a time when China and Japan are impoverishing themselves by fighting a costly war, experts attending the Far East Rural Hygiene conference in Java reveal that 75 per cent of the population of Asia is undernourished. The seriousness of this problem is emphasized by the fact that while the population continues to increase rapidly, the fertility of the soil is gradually diminishing, because in nearly all parts of the Orient the people take everything from the soil and put nothing back."

Thyroid Gland Controls Many Activities of Body

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT MUST occur to anybody who thinks of the manifold activities of any human body, that a central correlating force is necessary. A body is much like a highly organized modern city—the people walking through the streets on their various tasks can be represented by the blood cells; the telephone wires resemble the nerve fibrils which carry communications between every cell; the body has a water works which cleanses its organs and carries away waste products. Etcetera, etcetera. I need not carry the simile any further. As a matter of fact, I am a little stumped to think of anything that represents the heart in a modern city.

But, at any rate, we know that the kidneys are the actual spot where excretion takes place, and we know that they control it by their internal mechanism, just as the sanitary and hydraulic engineer of the city controls the water supply and the disposal of waste. But what controls the whole thing? Who is the mayor and the common council?

Glands Responsible.

Modern research seems to point to the fact that the thyroid gland is probably more responsible than anything else. Unless it is the pituitary gland. Thyroid and pituitary together, let us say. But it is worth while to study the functions of the thyroid.

This small bit of tissue carries with it the most enormous potentialities for anybody's life. It secretes the chemical into the blood stream which controls weight and growth, appetite, emotions, muscular action and a number of other things. We have learned about this partly by isolating the chemical and injecting it into animal bodies and noting the physiologic changes that occur, but principally we have learned about it because the thyroid is subject to diseases, and in some cases the secretion is increased and in some cases it is decreased.

When it is increased, cases of thyrotoxicosis, sometimes accompanied by goiter, and a number of effects can be noted. For instance, the question of weight which was described as long ago as 1893 by Friedrich Muller. He said that there was a paradoxical weight loss in the face of increased food, and he concluded from that, that there must be an increased rate of tissue breakdown in thyroid intoxication.

I once had a patient who stayed in bed for over two months, day and night, consuming about 6,000 calories a day. These were carefully weighed. This is enough to nourish a football player or a lumberjack at the hardest kind of work, and yet at the end of this period, in which she expended no energy at all, she weighed 113 pounds, exactly what she weighed at the beginning.

This shows what a terrible fire we are fighting.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

Ever Go Snipe Hunting?

DID ANYBODY ever take you Snipe Hunting? I don't mean with a gun. I mean with a light and an open sack in the middle of a black night, in strange country. I never went, just once. . . . I was a kid in a strange town and I had to be "initiated." All I had to do, they told me, was sit in a dark wood and hold open the mouth of a sack while the snipe, attracted by a lamp, hopped and fluttered and at last coyly drew near and walked right into the sack. Then my job was to close the sack and come home. And I nearly did it.

But something happened. Perhaps my father explained that it was just a game—that there were no snipe in that wood—that snipe weren't caught that way—that it was an old trick to humiliate a fellow and get the laugh on him and make him feel cheap. Or perhaps some other boy in the neighborhood, who didn't favor practical jokes, tipped me off. At any rate, I didn't go Snipe Hunting. Never went myself, never took anybody else Snipe Hunting. And never have liked Practical Jokes, from that day to this.

My dislike is no virtue. I hate them because I'm so gullible. I never suspect them until I'm right in the trap, red-faced and perspiring and wondering what fun he gets out of it. I don't like to be left holding the bag, so I don't like to see other people holding the bag either.

There's grief enough in this world, there's trouble enough for everybody, without deliberately manufacturing humiliation for others. If we want superiority, we should earn it honestly; we can't get it by any of the practical jokes that men use to inflate their vanity and swell their arrogance.

There are Wise Guys in this world and there are Suckers. The Wise Guys hold life cheap and cheat their friends and their families and they cheat themselves of the best there is in life. The Suckers sometimes lose everything they have—and they moan and they suffer agonies of humiliation—but the Simplest Simon that ever lived never lost as much as that man who thinks this world is made just for him, and that other people were created just to be taken on Snipe Hunts for his amusement.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THOUGHTS while strolling: Conversation we'd like to hear — Margery Wilson, the charm lady, and Dale Carnegie, the success fellow, talking things over. Al Shean—remember him and his funny hat with Mr. Gallagher? Now he is playing sombre priestly roles.

Nobody can make funnier faces than Mayor La Guardia and few can look more dignified. And not many can sit at a typewriter and write about nothing at all more entertainingly than Bruno Lessing. Phyllis Haver's wide-eyed look of innocent surprise. Out of an Oppenheim novel: Jules Bache.

Informed-without-being-ponderous announcer: Deems Taylor. Newest stage honey the blades want to squire: Joy Hedges. Those dull blue pebble cloth suits Adolphe Menjou effects. But nobody seems to go for his dinky-bosomed stiff shirts with the horizontal stripes.

Staunch pals of the Rialto: William Gaxton and Victor Moore. Few so democratic can look so uppity as Bernard Baruch. And no reporter in any era has wangled more publicity than Lucius Beebe unless perhaps Richard Harding Davis. The bleating Dr. George Rockwell is as shy as a school girl off stage.

Grandma name for gossipers: Pritkins. Broadway's only chop house lady, Helen Gallagher—and quick on the come-back. And a few blocks further the lawyer, Lucille Pugh, and mannish costume. A woman's world. Oh, Mr. Valentine, those Valentino looking boys with long sideburns are all over town again!

The New York woman no longer rouges her cheek, save on stage and cabaret chorus. A master beautician is speaking. Bright lips and nails prevail — Lynn Fontanne is doing her nails in solid black, by the way. But nowhere on the boulevard is the painted cheek. But west of Jersey City—the beautician again talking—the rouge pot flourishes. In some sections of the middle west they not only smear it one their cheeks but in instances circle red around their eyes and across the forehead. The late Mrs. Leslie Carter was the first woman I ever saw apply rouge. It was during a dressing room interview, and somehow my cheeks got as red as her's.

Incidentally, one of the lesser Emily Posts who coaches Gold Coast youngsters in their shallnots, lets the bars down on chewing gum. For many years gum chewing among the girls was confined to the "dese" and "dem" damsels of the Bowery beer joints. But today gum chewing in moderation is all right. That is to say, on the golf course, in bathing or motoring. Will Rogers did much to uplift chewing gum socially. If a grand fellow such as Bill was could chew gum anywhere, it was difficult to make it seem gauche.

Elsie De Wolfe, in private Lady Mendl, is regarded by many as about the best dressed elderly socialite. Not only in New York, but in London and Paris. Silver-haired but with a youngish figure, she is a head-turner wherever she appears. Miss De Wolfe does not come into a restaurant. She makes an entrance. So profound even cashiers halt in change making. The only person to match her for the grand entrance was Ethel Barrymore. There was something psychic about it. Several times at the Algonquin I have seen the entire dining room stop eating and for no reason at all begin watching the entrance. In a few seconds Miss Barrymore, cool, haughty and thoroughly detached, would sweep in. Perhaps en route to her table she would indulge a mocking little laugh. It might not have been studied, but I suspect it was. Anyway, it was a grand bit of acting.

Friends of Natacha Rambova, the former Winifred Hudnut, hear she is still in Spain, living near the French border and devoting her life to caring for the destitute and wounded. She married a Spaniard and was living at care-free Majorca when hell broke loose. Her husband is still in the fighting. Miss Rambova is said to have grown quite plump and her hair has turned gray. She is still vastly interested in spiritualism.

Pull of the pooch: There were three sad-eyed Scotties in a dog shop window in the 40's at 11 o'clock the other morning. At 4 that afternoon all were gone. The lady in charge said one was purchased around noon by a richly furred customer who came in a limousine. Two hours later she came back for the other two. "I simply could not bear to be the cause of their separation," she said. Each pup was priced at $100.

I am for anything in this world that keeps the problem of finding a substitute for war in people's minds.—Ida Tarbell.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. The president.

2. Coffee. Brazil produces approximately 69 per cent of the world's supply.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

LIVING A FALSEHOOD: He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby we know that we are in him.—1 John 2:4, 5.

CAMERA STUDY MADE OF LAND OF BARBARIANS

Explorer Spends Six Months on Hainan Island Off Indo-China.

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—Nicol Smith, young San Francisco explorer and adventurer, has returned to his home here from a six-month exploration trip to lonely Hainan island, off the southeast coast of China.

Smith brought back hundreds of photographs, botanical specimens and maps of the remote island. He recorded native life on more than 4,000 feet of sound film.

Hainan island is northeast of Indo-China off the southeastern China coast. It is 190 miles long and 95 miles wide. Until Smith's recent explorations in the interior of the island no white man had ever penetrated inland. The island is populated by primitive natives of Malay origin who still hunt with poisoned arrows.

Attacked by Buffalo.

Smith had several "close shaves" with death on his latest trip, he said. On one occasion his car was attacked by a huge water buffalo and at another time, he said, a airplane in which he was flying from Hainan to Canton, to get permission to take photographs in the island's interior, was forced to land in the wild tiger district of Liu Chow in South China, miles from civilization.

In the heart of the wild Hainan country Smith almost died from the effects of a severe sunstroke. On another occasion quick action of a companion saved him from drowning in a swift mountain river.

Smith made the only motion pictures ever taken of the Loi aborigine tribes of Hainan and obtained recordings of their native music. He made the first inland maps for the National Geographic society and obtained botanical specimens for the American Museum of natural history.

Rare Bear Captured.

A rare Hainan bear, captured by the expedition, died before it could be transported from the interior and the animal was stuffed. It was the only bear of this species ever seen by a white person, Smith said. Among other trophies was the skin of a 14-foot python, killed by a member of the exploring party.

At the completion of his Hainan island exploration, Smith traveled to Yunnan on the Burma-Tibetan border. While there, he was the first white man to visit Kochui, the "mystery city of Asia," in more than 20 years. In Kochui, Smith said, 25,000 children have been sold into slavery.

In the past 10 years Smith has toured unusual out-of-the-way sections of Europe, Asia, America and the South Seas. He has made extensive explorations in the interior of Dutch Guiana.

MORE EXCITING

Ohioans Kill Game With Staves and Arrows.

MARION—(AP)—Bending their staves with a will and letting the arrows fall where they would, archery addicts bagged four pheasants and a dozen rabbits in the third annual hunt at the state archery preserve near here.

Eighty men and women participated in this year's hunt—an indication, R. C. Shumway of Cincinnati, president of the Ohio Archery and Hunting association, said, of the revival of interest in the Robin Hood type of game gathering.

The sport is more exciting than hunting with a dog and gun, Shumway declared, because the game has a greater chance to escape.

Suit Ends After Being In Supreme Court Nine Times

HELENA, Mont.—(UP)—The longest lawsuit between two individuals in Montana's legal history ended when District Judge George W. Padbury, jr., signed a judgment in interpleader, ordering payment of $7,450.33 to C. M. Burgess, of Townsend, in a suit begun in 1924 against W. D. Lasby, also of Townsend.

The suit was sent to the Montana supreme court nine times during its history, and 16 different district judges were called in to hear testimony before final settlement.

The case was an outgrowth of an "oil fever" which struck Broadwater valley and Townsend in 1920, when it was believed that oil strikes in the section were imminent.

Records of the suit show that Lasby purchased the Burgess ranch, paying a part of the purchase price in cash and giving a mortgage for the balance.

By 1924, according to the records, no oil was found. Lasby failed to make payments on the mortgage and Burgess brought the foreclosure suit.

DAM INSPIRES MINING BOOM

'Cheap Power' to Spur Diggings For Columbia River Ore.

STEVENSON, Wash.—(INS)—A mining boom for Southern Washington appeared on the way today, as Bonneville dam neared completion.

With "cheap power" expected as a result of the huge federal power project in the Columbia river, power mining operations in the mountainous sections along the Columbia are due to increase. Mining engineers from widely separated parts of the United States already have arrived to look over prospective mine sites.

Geological tests have proven the presence of great quantities of ore in the mountain areas along the Columbia, where a dozen or more claims are being worked now.

FOOLS MOTHER

Boy's 'Rare Disease' Marks Only Marks From Pencil.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn.—(AP)—Six year old Joseph Peluso's mother feared he had a "rare skin disease" when she rushed him to the Emergency hospital.

But the blue spots dotting Joseph's head, back and chest disappeared when Dr. Daniel M. Massey applied kerosene.

"Indelible pencil," was Dr. Massey's diagnosis.

The Smoke Abatement Society of London says smoke adds to the "soupiness" of fogs and estimates damage to the parliament buildings from smoke to be $5,000,000.

Powers Watch Conflicts Grow as Nations Divide Into Separate Blocs.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

NEW YORK—Europe will have to strain her ears to catch the message of peace on earth this Christmas, because of the din from the rapidly growing conflict as the nations divide into two blocs, with a third group of neutrals sitting anxiously on the side.

There is no great threat of an immediate general upheaval, but statesmen are looking with apprehension to the future a few years hence.

Britain and France, as leaders of old world democracy, are doing everything in their power to halt the formation of hostile alliances. They hold that such blocs breed war with certainty. Because of this they have been striving to persuade Fascist chieftains Mussolini and Hitler to join in a general effort to rehabilitate Europe and safeguard peace.

Fascists Gaining.

But it is difficult to pull a man away from the gaming table when he is winning—and the fascist pair have been gaining at the expense of the democratic governments. They elect to pursue their lucky stars.

Meantime both groups are rushing rearmament programs never before undertaken outside wartime. The statesmen of the Anglo-French group and of the Italo-German brotherhood have attacked their respective problems with feverish energy in recent weeks. The capitals of these four major powers are seething today, and here is the picture they see:

The anti-German fraternity of many nations, formed just after the World war and at about the time the stork fetched baby Fascism, shows disaffections. France and England are more than anxious. Specifically:

Belgium has renounced her alliances and become a dyed-in-the-wool neutral. She is resting on her laurels as the heroine who threw herself in front of the German war-machine in 1914. Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries are on the bench, too.

Portugal, Britain's oldest ally and a participant in the World war, has a totalitarian dictatorship and has been working overtime to help the Spanish insurgents win under the leadership of Fascist Generalissimo Franco. He is heavily backed by Hitler and Mussolini and proposes to establish a Fascist dictatorship if and when he wins the war.

Over in eastern Europe Poland—once staunch French ally—has a sort of dictatorship and is flirting with Hitler: the little entente, which France constructed with such care as a defense against Germany, gives many signs of splitting up. Yugoslavia and Rumania are leaning towards the Fascist set-up, and Czechoslovakia, the third member, while still loyal to France has a dire problem on her hands in a big German population which is Nazi.

France is energetically trying to repair this damage, and she and England are trying to work out some plan which will satisfy the fascist claims (such as Hitler's demand for a return of German colonies), and still leave democracy with some of its tail feathers intact.

Russia 'Bugbear'.

One factor, of which we hear very little, has entered into this situation in a big way—that of the French Alliance with Russia. Fascism is, of course, violently anti-communistic, and is winning recruits under that banner, for red Russia is still a bugbear, especially to the little countries in the east.

France has been getting a lot of nasty looks from her friends because of this Moscow hook-up. As a matter of fact, Britain herself isn't so keen about the arrangement, and some of her prominent statesmen have been openly antagonistic to it.

TRACE BUNNIES

Game Wardens Tag Rabbits, Hunters Report Back.

COLUMBUS— (AP) —"Earmarked" rabbits were used by the state conservation department this fall to gather information necessary for its game propagation and distribution program.

Before being released from state game reserves, thousands of bunnies were fitted with small metal tabs, bearing serial numbers.

As the rabbits were shot, hunters reported the date and location of the kill and the division checked the serial number to determine the release date and the place.

STRIKE COST TO U. S. 5 BILLIONS, BUSINESS TOLD

National Steel Head Says Labor Dispute Cost Each Family $160 in '37.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Strikes cost this country around five billion dollars, or between $160 to $175 per family, in 1937 "the worst and most costly period of labor turmoil in our history," Ernest T. Weir, chairman of National Steel corporation, told American business leaders.

Speaking before the annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers he declared capital and labor "not only must get along, but can get along together," and asserted the government attitude "in the present situation" was "one of the biggest stumbling blocks to a rational get-together."

Points To Recession.

Weir, with Dr. Leo Wolman, Columbia university labor authority and Charles W. Fahy, general counsel of the national labor relations board, was one of the principal speakers at the association's final sessions of its three day convention.

Asserting that "a critical business recession has set in," Weir pleaded for co-operation between labor and capital.

"What we need now," he said, "are leaders who think not in terms of labor alone, of farmers alone, of consumers alone, or of sectionalism.

"America cries for men who give their allegience to the people as a whole and who when serving one group, refrain from a partisanship which is harmful to other groups."

Amendment of the national labor relations act was one of the means by which cooperation could be secured, Weir declared.

"If corporations," he said, "are to be expected to deal with labor unions, then the unions should be required to make themselves as responsible as the corporations.

"They should be prohibited from contributing to political campaigns as are corporations. It should be illegal for them to call a strike without first taking vote of employes in the plant involved. Strike violence should be outlawed."

CARRIES SUIT AGAINST KIN TO SUPREME COURT

Music Teacher Presses Four-Year-Old Damage Case; Brother's Defendant.

Indicating her intent to carry her $25,000 damage suit against her brother to the Ohio Supreme court, Miss Helen L. Beer, Wooster road, music teacher, today had filed notice of appeal in common pleas court from an opinion handed down by the court of appeals.

Miss Beer, who sought damages from Wilbur Beer, Mansfield, for injuries she received nearly four years ago, was awarded $2,125 in 1934 by a jury in common pleas court. The court later reversed the decision when Miss Beer sought to collect on her judgment from the Buckeye Union Casualty company of Columbus in a supplementary action.

Upholds Lower Court.

The Fifth district appeals court affirmed the lower court's second ruling last month.

In her original action Miss Beer contended she was a paying passenger in her brother's automobile at the time of the accident by virtue of having purchased the gasoline to make a trip to Columbus. She suffered injuries, she said, in March 1934, when the car in which she was riding with her brother, collided with another on Lexington avenue.

FIREMEN FIGHT FIRES AT STORE, HOME IN GALION

Blooming Grove Meat Shop Damaged; Stove, Chimney Blamed For Blazes.

GALION—While the mercury stood at 10 above, city firemen fought two fires in the vicinity of Galion Thursday afternoon.

The first call was to the meat shop and store at the George Pittman residence in Blooming Grove at 1:50 p. m. Considerable damage was caused from a fire started by an overheated stove. Firemen used chemicals and water from a cistern, to extinguish the blaze. The store is operated at the rear of the residence, and firemen were forced to cut holes in the room in order to put out the fire. Insurance will cover the loss.

At 3:45 p. m. a call came from the residence of L. W. Harsh at Second avenue and Smith street. The siding of the home had just been shingled, and the interior remodeled. Construction of the chimney was such that a flue connection caused a fire when the stove became overheated.

The interior of the home was damaged considerably from smoke and water. No estimate was placed on the amount of damage.

Jury Rejects Life Term Plea For Gangster Accused of Murdering Patrolman.

HAMMOND, Ind.—(U.P.)—James Dalhover, Indiana farm boy who grew up to take a place as "trigger" man for the Al Brady gang of outlaws, must die in the electric chair for the murder of State Policeman Paul Minneman.

The gangster, 31, was shackled with leg irons and removed to the county jail at South Bend shortly after a jury of eight farmers and four tradesmen returned the death verdict last night. He was guarded carefully in his cell.

Wipes Out Gang.

His execution will end the government's fight to wipe out the Brady gang. Brady, who often boasted he would outdo the depreations of Gang Leader John Dillinger, was shot and killed by G-men Oct. 12 during a gunfight in Bangor, Me. Clarence Lee Schaffer also was killed. Dalhover was captured and returned here for trial.

He heard the jury's verdict with the same stolidity he maintained through his four-day trial—even on the witness stand when he told a frank and detailed story of the gang's career—of murder, robbery and burglary.

Minneman was slain in ambush May 25 after the gang had robbed the State Bank at Goodland, Ind. A deputy sheriff was wounded in the fight.

Minneman was felled by a barrage from an army size machine gun, one of two the gang stole from public war memorial in two little Ohio towns.

Denies Shooting.

He pleaded guilty to participation in the Minneman slaying but denied he fired the fatal shots.

"I haven't had a chance since I was a kid," he said on the witness stand. "I was there but didn't shoot at Minneman."

Judge Slick, who heard the plea, ordered Dalhover held for trial by jury, a proceeding provided by a new federal statute in which the jury determines the degree of guilt and is empowered to return a death sentence.

District Attorney James R. Flemin said Dalhover will be executed at the Michigan City State prison.

Dean Rex, principal at Carpenter school, because of his record during squirrel season, had been considered a fairly good hunter by his friends—but that was before his recent pheasant hunting trip. After driving with W. A. Freeman, principal of Western Avenue school, some 145 miles from Mansfield in quest of pheasants, and being out all day, Rex left mone too happy with one rabbit. Stopping in Sandusky to eat, he left the rabbit in the car with his hunting dog. When he came back he found that the dog had eaten, too—the one rabbit he had shot. All he got out of the trip was the ride.

PAID $50 'FEE', EX-INMATE SAYS

Attorney Insisted on More Money, Witness Tells Ohio Jury Probing Paroles.

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Spread today on the records of the special grand jury investigating parole conditions was the testimony of a former inmate of the London prison farm who told newspapermen he gave an attorney $50 in his efforts for freedom and that the lawyer had insisted on more.

Almost simultaneously the jury took its first definite action and requested the state parole board to revoke a parole granted Louis C. Vandervort of Jamestown in Green county, who served 14 years of a life sentence for killing a Wilmington policeman.

The jury acted after Prosecutor George L. Schilling of Clinton county asserted that many residents there were opposed to the parole.

Clinton countians had no opportunity to appear before the board before parole was granted, the jury said it had been informed. It asked the board to invite them to testify at another hearing. The parole is effective Dec. 20.

The prisoner who related the story of paying parole fees was John L. Hill of Columbus, whose plight was made known at Atty Gen. Herbert S Duffy, who heads the investigation, when he brought Duffy a letter from the attorney.

JOBLESS ROLLS INCREASE, WPA TO PROVIDE WORK FOR 350,000

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Increased unemployment forced the administration today to expand WPA spending by $2,000,000 a month, despite presidential economy plans.

The WPA employment rolls, now totaling 1,575,000 persons, will be enlarged to provide jobs for an additional 350,000 persons.

The announcement was made by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins last night shortly before he left for a physical check-up at the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn.

The proposed expansion was reported to be slightly higher than earlier WPA estimates of the winter's relief peak, but Hopkins said it could be handled within his budget.

For the year ending next June 30, WPA has been allotted $1,275,000,000. It has been spending about $100,000,000 a month, and has $775,000,000 left. The increased expenditures can be carried on for a while within that appropriation.

Hopkins declared, however, that there was no implication in his announcement as "to the number of people who should be employed this winter." He said he was not considering at this time any request for additional funds.

"I simply say that on the basis of the realities of the present situation," Hopkins added, "we think the requirements of the relief problem so far as employable people are concerned indicate we should increase our number by 350,000."

One government economist, who declined to be quoted by name, estimated 1,100,000 men who were working in factories three months ago, now are out of work. Another 1,800,000, he calculated, have been reduced to part-time work.

BILL APPROVED IN HOUSE AFTER BITTER BATTLE

Measure Providing Immediate Funds For Needy Opposed By Rural Bloc.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The administration's $1,000,000 stop-gap relief bill to finance the present needs of local subdivisions headed today toward the senate after surviving a rural insurrection in the house that nearly wrecked it.

The 92 votes necessary for its passage as an emergency measure were obtained only after continuous roll calls caused several members reluctantly to change their positions.

Previously a sufficient number of rural legislators, ignoring party lines, had refrained from voting or opposed passage long enough to endanger its emergency status.

Urges Permanent Bill.

Voicing his opposition, Rep. Kenneth M. Petri (D., Crawford) said:

"As long as we have stop-gap bills we never will have a permanent relief program. If we pass this bill, we will be asked to pass another about Jan. 1.

"We had better precipitate a crisis now by refusing to make this appropriation and thereby force speedy enactment of a permanent relief program."

The emergency clause eventually was adopted 93 to 21 and the bill itself passed 98 to 7. It will be considered by the senate when it reconvenes at 5 p. m. Monday. If passed by the senate it would become effective upon receiving the governor's signature under emergency provisions.

The bill would appropriate $1,000,000 from the state's general revenue fund to the state emergency board for distribution to the counties on the basis of their [illegible] requirements, such allocations to be deducted from their future grants from the sales tax funds set aside for relief next year.

While several representatives contended the house would "bog down" and refuse to speed consideration of a permanent relief program, if immediate needs were satisfied by the stop-gap bill, Speaker Frank R. Uible (D., Cuyahoga), just before the body adjourned until 7:30 p. m. Monday, pledged the house leadership to "expeditious" passage of a relief program for 1938.

He said the lower branch of the assembly would work until the night of Dec. 23 and then, if a program had not been approved, would recess until the new year.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

The Ickes-Roper Clash.

IT MIGHT be worth while if the administration spokesmen, who so vehemently insist that in order to avert disaster the opponents of Mr. Roosevelt should cease criticizing and co-operate, would investigate and inform the public which one of the most recently orating cabinet members really represents his views—Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper or Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes

The situation created by these cabinet speakers is puzzling. When a member of a president's cabinet makes a prepared address, copies of which are sent to the press in advance, containing expressions of opinion on controversial issues, the natural assumption is that the speech was submitted to the president, read and approved by him. That is the well recognized rule. If it is not rigidly adhered to the cabinet member at least would make certain that the views he proposed to express did not clash with those of his chief and would not embarrass him if publicly proclaimed. When the president and a member of his cabinet find themselves not in accord on an important issue, the only answer is the resignation of the latter.

AS, apparently, neither Mr. Roper nor Mr. Ickes has the least intention of resigning, it is logical to believe that they agree with their speeches. But that can hardly be because they do not agree with each other. Clearly it would seem that if the president approves the fervid utterances of his secretary of commerce, he cannot approve the fierce pronouncements of his secretary of the interior. And vice versa. Mr. Roper's speech, for example, was soft, persuasive and reassuring to business generally. He urged that the budget be balanced, expenses curtailed, the national debt reduced, the undistributed-profits tax reversed, the railroads treated constructively and responsibility placed upon labor organizations as well as business management.

IN OTHER WORDS, he made a very strong, conservative speech. It might have been Mr. Winthrop Aldrich talking, or Mr. Lewis Douglas It sounded like the late Ogden Mills, and it was intrepted as "very reassuring," indeed. However, no one could possibly apply the word reassuring to Mr. Ickes' violent oration before the American Civil Liberties Union. It could be called stimulating, or provocative, or disturbing, or a good many other things; but not reassuring. He directly attacked the supreme court, intimated that it was controlled by corporate influences and against "human rights." Then he spent considerable time denouncing "big business." Finally, he swung into a general condemnation of that part of the press which does not support the New Deal, accusing it of suppressing and coloring the news and misrepresenting the facts.

OBVIOUSLY, the Roper and Ickes speeches clash. They are made from different viewpoints, inspired by a different spirit and dictated by a different desire. One wants to revive business and have it and the administration pull together for the common good. The other wants to fight business, the courts and the press. The question is, Which one really represents the Roosevelt view? With almost anyone else it would be impossible to reconcile his retention of two men with such completely conflicting views in his official family. The reason it is not impossible to reconcile this with Mr. Roosevelt is that he, personally, has at different times expressed the views enunciated by Mr. Roper and at other times the views enunciated by Mr. Ickes.

EXTRAORDINARY as it may seem, he agrees with both—or at least has in the past. That explains how two members of his cabinet can sing safely on wholly different keys, but it does not help the business men whom Mr. Kennedy urged to stop bellyaching, to decide which direction they will be taken if they stop opposing and begin co-operating. Nor does it promote belief in either the sincerity or the stability of the president. The reassurances from the soft-spoken Mr. Roper are completely nullified by the vehement attack of the always bitter Mr. Ickes. It is a typical New Deal performance.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The good old agricultural principle of "crop diversification"—applied to movies—is lengthening the life span of the stars.

They used to say that a movie star's "average life" was five years, and it was true Today, it's nearer 10. And more if you count that pre-starring period in every star's life during which the spotlight, and the coin, is almost as bright.

Clark Gable's been prominent, although not always a star, nearly seven years Constance Bennett, not counting her early silent venture, has been a star in talkies for eight. Ronald Colman made his first hit 11 years ago. Claudette Colbert, after two featured years, began to click in 1932 Gary Cooper was already big in the silents, achieved starring status eight years ago Carole Lombard, Ginger Rogers, Irene Dunne, Norma Shearer, Fredric March, Wally Beery, Warner Baxter—the majority of today's stars, were stars or at least well known in 1930. Misses Lombard, Rogers and Dunne did not hit starring stride until later, but the real movie fans knew them seven years ago.

That doesn't add up to an average of eight years, but most of those mentioned have several years to go before they can be considered "washed up." And it's diversification that does it.

Irene Dunne does a comedy like "The Awful Truth" but pretty soon she'll be in something serious again. Gable's unfortunate appearance in "Parnell" whets the fan appetite for a tidbit like "Saratoga." Gary Cooper does an heroic tour de force in "The Plainsman," which contrasts sharply with "Mr. Deeds" and "The Adventures of Marco Polo."

There's more of the same going on in the teaming business Separating Astaire and Rogers for a time; letting Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy appear opposite other singing sweethearts; spacing the William Powell - Myrna Loy duets—that's diversification. In the silents the team of Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall was over-worked and there isn't any Mulhall-Mackaill team any more.

Maybe the producers are more discerning about such matters nowadays. Maybe the stars are more insistent on proper vehicles, although stars are notoriously poor as wagon-choosers. But more likely it's just the talkies—opening new fields for talent and personality. Or the public, which seems to have a broader view of Hollywood and its people than it used to have, and doesn't insist on its favorites sticking in the same old grooves.

From all of which, it comes to me suddenly, Marlene Dietrich might take a hint. On arrival in New York recently she was quoted as to her intention to make one more picture in Hollywood — "then I am through" She makes pictures abroad, she said.

But what came to me suddenly was that Marlene, who probably didn't mean it, anyway, isn't necessarily "through." One good picture in which she breaks down and acts, not only with eyebrows but with vigor, could change her mind. Of course, she didn't use "through" in the sense I do.

Tailored Lace

The tailored type of dinner dress is pictured here in beige net and lace. The two fabrics make an interesting skirt trimming, and call attention to the shoulder. A brown velvet sash makes a large bow in front, and is placed at the natural waistline.

SUDS THAT SATISFY

When you scrub and rub and rinse until you're ready to cry with discouragement, yet the clothes come out of the wash tub not quite clean, perhaps you have overlooked the fact that soap and water get just as tired as you do. As long as the water is clean and the suds abundant and sparkling, they do their job of attaching themselves to every particle of dirt so that it can be easily rinsed away. But when the suds grow flat and gray, don't expect them to accomplish miracles.

Let the water out, draw a fresh supply, and whip up a frothy new lather. Only then can you be sure of the best results, for you will be putting the burden on the soap and water where it belongs, instead of on yourself.

TIE IT

It is getting more and more popular to anchor your hat under your chin with bow and long ends. It is done with bonnet shapes, pill-boxes and many other styles in headgear.

FUR FASHION

Wide and flat lapels are features of the latest fur coat fashions from Paris.

Wife Asks Advice On Back Debts

By VIRGINIA LEE

"BLESSED BE - NOTHING," said a friend of mine once upon a time when members of a family we knew were wrangling over property matters.

But even when there is nothing —or almost nothing—to quarrel about, folk can be quite cruel and heartless when it comes to money matters.

GLORIA begs me not to print any more of her letter than I can help, as she fears it may be recognized. She always has worked, even since she was a little girl. When in her twenties she met a young man and fell in love with him. He has been out of work off and on, losing his job soon after they were married. "What a wedding present that was!" says Gloria.

She has kept her little room and kept on working, although at times she has been worried for fear her employer would find out she was married and she would lose her job.

She gave money to her husband time and time again, before they were married, bought him clothes and things; helped him in every way a loyal and loving girl could. He lived at home and paid board there, even when he wasn't working. Later, when they lived together, she lost her baby and had the doctor's bills to pay.

Gloria's husband got behind in his board bill to his mother when he was out of a job, and when they were married the mother said she couldn't afford to give them a wedding present, but would cancel this bill. Now this mother is living with a married daughter and this daughter has been under great expense and now wants to collect her brother's back board bill to help herself out.

I hope I haven't printed too much of your lettter, Gloria, but it seems to me that you should simply refuse to pay any money at all to your sister-in-law. Both you and your husband have done the best you could for his mother all along, and the sister's heavy expenses are none of your making. I do not see how you can be taxed for them. Your mother-in-law forgave the debt and that is all there is of it. You and your husband should concentrate on helping yourselves. You have been more than generous with your husband and his people, and I don't think you should allow yourself to be worried into your grave because of debts which you did not contract. There is no justice in that, and I wish you could stop worrying about it and get a little pleasure out of life. I hope you can follow my advice.

WORRIED: In my estimation you did just right not to kiss a boy you had met that same evening. If he is "mad" let him get over it. Do not worry any more about the matter.

This Adaptable Pattern Will Make Dress or House Coat.

By MARIAN MARTIN

Believe it or not . . . the very same Marian Martin pattern can be used to make both the practical house dress and the glamorous housecoat (see View B). It's all a question of length and trimming. Both are extremely simple to make. View A shows the house frock with perky puffed sleeves . . . make it without the ric-rac and button closing if you wish and have long, instead of short sleeves. To make a house coat from this pattern, cut your material to instep length, make a little turn-over collar and close the coat to the knee or lower with a patented slide fastener instead of with buttons. Complete Diagrammed Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9531 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4 5-8 yards 36-inch fabric and 2 3-4 yards ric-rac braid.

BE SURE TO STATE SIZE

Menu Hint.

Vegetable Platter—Cubed Potatoes, Sauce
Shoe String Beans
Radish Roses or Olives
Baked Tomato Cases Filled With Lima Beans
Chocolate Pudding Coffee

Vegetable meals first got their start in life with the reducers. They have gained a great deal of popularity, however, with everyone. Fresh vegetables are easily obtained in most markets, and canned ones may be used for some of those suggested in a vegetable menu. Potatoes usually are the center of the vegetable plate. They are almost universally liked, and can be prepared in many different ways. Cubed and served with one of the sauces for which recipes are given here, they serve as the hub around which the rest of the menu revolves.

Today's Recipes.

WHITE SAUCE FOR VEGETABLES—Two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup milk, one-fourth teaspoon salt, few grains of pepper. Melt butter, add flour mixed with seasonings. Stir until well blended. Pour on milk gradually while still continually stirring. Bring to boiling point. Boil five minutes.

KING SAUCE—To white sauce, add the following ingredients: One tablespoon chopped green pepper, one tablespoon chopped pimento, one hard-cooked egg, chopped; four stuffed olives, chopped.

How Hat Looks Depends On Coiffure

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

THE NEW HATS that the millinery stylists have designed for this winter are more extreme than the hat styles of the past season. They are definitely on the up-and-up. They're shallow enough in the crown, all right, but they tower upward in skyscraper fashion. And while they can prove utterly smart and attractive when worn above a properly coiffed head, they are most unbecoming if the hair is not suitably arranged.

This establishes a definite relationship between hat and coiffure. For if the winter bonnet you purchase is one of those chic, ultra-smart high-hat creations, you must counteract the severity of the hat's lines by a soft hair arrangement. Your coiffure must be decidedly delicate and feminine in order to form a proper balance, because of the severe lines of your chapeau. It's all right to strive for smartness. It's grand to look like the last word from Paris. But don't forget that femininity is still an important item in the beauty scheme of things!

In the old days, coiffures had to be amazingly elaborate to be considered feminine. But today, a feminine coiffure no longer means an abundance of over-curly hair massed about the head or hanging to the shoulders. The new coiffures, while they retain their soft, feminine lines, have a sleek, sculptured look. Soft waves and ringlets form a definite part of them, but the hair is molded close to the head. And usually, to achieve that neat, sculptured effect, proper thinning of the hair is necessary.

Hair that is thick and bulky does not adapt itself easily to the new individualistic coiffure styles. So the woman who possesses it must usually have it thinned before she has it waved or arranged in the style she prefers. And when the job is properly done, the thinning not only makes the hair more adaptable to changes in coiffure styles, but also benefits its health.

No woman, of course, should ever attempt to thin her hair herself. This would be decidedly foolhardy. What's more, she should permit only an expert operator to do the thinning, for hair should be thinned by effilation, and not by cutting out of chunks from various parts of the head.

It stands to reason that if large strands of the hair are simply sheared off, the cut hair will not be evenly distributed, and the coiffure will have an unbalanced contour. What's more; when the cut hair starts to grow in, it will seem a mass of short ends, and will prove extremely unmanageable.

If each strand of hair is thinned skillfully along its whole length, however, the finished coiffure will not be harmed in the least, and no short ends will be visible. Hair that is thinned in the correct manner preserves the shapely contours of the head, and adapts itself easily to styles of smartness and individuality.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SLAM MATERIAL

EVEN OPPOSITE a very sound and conservative bidder, it is seldom wise to give a positive response to his opening game guarantee bid of two in a suit except with very substantial reasons for the call. Some of the best players insist on having either at least one first round trick or two second round tricks, such as guarded kings. Lacking these, they would make the first round weakness response of 2-No Trumps. For slam purposes, a K-Q or even a K-Q-J combination is not usually as useful as a couple of K's or an A.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

When South started the bidding on this deal with 2-Hearts, North felt his spade suit was good enough to give a positive response of 2-Spades. As soon as South heard this he was prepared for a slam and ended in 6-Hearts.

When the club Q was led, South realized he was in a very difficult spot, as North had misled him into thinking the hand would produce several tricks. To declarer's dismay, he found he could not get into dummy unless the outstanding trumps dropped in two rounds.

Upon further reflection, he realized that there was a possibility that the hand could still be made by giving up a trump trick, rather than risk the possibility that the trumps were as he hoped. He therefore cashed his spade A to unblock that suit and led a small heart. East won and returned the diamond K, but the contract was now safe. In spite of his brilliant play which brought success, declarer still felt North had overbid his hand.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

How should South play to make 3-No Trumps after the lead of the club Q?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, December 11.

A day of conflicting auguries is indicated by the prevailing planetary configurations. While there are signs of decided gain and prosperity, there are also omens of sudden and hasty moves, excitement, some duplicity and a sorrow or bereavement. The latter may account for the unexpected prosperity, through a bequest, inheritance or trust. Keep calm and be especially tactful with superiors and employers.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of contradictory circumstances, with much gain and prosperity, but also a sorrow or bereavement. The gain may arise from such a source as a will, insurance, trust or property or business inheritance. Refrain from rash or offensive conduct with superiors or employers.

A child born on this day may be practical and energetic although deep, studious, aloof and serious-minded. It may lean to the occult.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

AT NOEL'S query concerning his car, with the corollary that he must start back to New Hampshire before daylight the next morning, I kept silent and waited for Dicky to answer. If Philip Veritzen telephoned, I meant to deal with him. I also had mentally outlined a scheme for keeping Noel and Mary away from the telephone which I meant to explain to them a little later. But this question, in his own parlance, was Dicky's "meat," and I made no attempt to take it away from him.

But his mother, patently considering herself released from her promise by Noel's question, leaped into the conversational arena with agility.

"Oh, you children don't know yet," she began. "The most wonderful thing has happened! You don't have to go back tomorrow, Noel."

News Stuns Noel.

"What?" Noel and Mary shouted together with pardonable rudeness and Noel added a breathless query, "Has father telephoned—or—"

"No such luck," his wife's grandmother told him tartly. "You surely know better than to expect any change of heart in your father."

"Then what—" Noel stammered, bewildered.

"You tell him, Richard," Mother Graham said surprisingly, for she rarely yields the center of the stage to anyone. "You can explain motor car things better than Margaret or I can."

"Motor car things—" Noel echoed, and now there was a distinct note of anxiety in his voice. "What has happened?"

"Nothing very terrible," Dicky told him. "That clutch of yours went completely flooey on the way to the service station. Jim telephoned us, asking what to do, and I told him to phone the garage and have them tow it in and do as quick a clutch job as possible on it. But, unfortunately, they're a man short because of sickness, and they can't possibly get the job done before late tomorrow night."

"Isn't that simply wonderful?" Mother Graham said with a lilt in her voice. "That means you'll have a whole extra day here, and another night, too, for you certainly must not start out at night for that long journey. Mary would worry her head off."

But Mary was looking anxiously at her young husband, who had uttered an explosive expletive at Dicky's news.

"Isn't it too marvelous to be true, Noel?" she asked. "What do you think? Will it be possible for us—"

She left the question suspended in the air, and Noel answered it with doleful negation.

"You don't know father," he said, "if you think anything like that will change his plan to have me get back tomorrow. He'll be checking up with me tonight by telephone, I'm almost certain, to see that I'm starting back on schedule. When I tell him the car is out of commission, he'll tell me to take the first train or plane I can get hold of."

Madge Has An Idea.

There was such despondency in his voice and in Mary's face, following the glowing hope which Mother Graham's first words had brought into their faces, that I felt my courage steeling.

"Look here, you two," I said, "will you put yourselves in my hands, and do exactly as I say if I guarantee you an extra 24 hours out here?"

My mother-in-law clapped her hands in an exuberance she rarely manifests.

"I knew Margaret would figure out something," she said, and I sent her a grateful smile, for her words were very pleasant in my ears. Her compliments, in the trite old phraseology, are "few and far between."

Mary dashed over to me and put her arms around my neck.

"I might have known you'd think of something, Auntie Marge," she said "Of course, we'll do anything you say. Won't we, Noel?"

REMEMBER THAT NIGHT

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

(Copyright 1937)

SYNOPSIS

Karen Mallare, pretty, black-haired and 20, decides to give up her dress shop job in Harriston when her foster-parents die, and go to New York to go on the stage. When she tells Jerry Forbes, who came to the town to work in his uncle's bank, he begs her to change her mind and marry him. She asks him if he knows her story. When she was only six months old, her mother, who had played for a week in Harriston with a group of young actors and actresses which disbanded because of lack of funds, left her in her room when she took the midnight train. Found by a maid, Karen was adopted by John and Hetty Mallare who cheerfully stinted to keep her in school and give her singing and dancing lessons. She attracted attention in the school plays and later with amateurs who gave plays in the high-school auditorium. Always she had wanted to become an actress and now she convinces Jerry that she is determined to go ahead. Manfully Jerry wishes her luck and says he will be waiting for her "if you need me." The first night in New York she meets blond Roxanne Dell who has a room in the same house, and sings on a hotel roof. She is hard on the surface but Karen likes her. As Karen is leaving a theater after seeing Brenda Bond and Philip Ashley's play, her purse is knocked from under her arm and kicked about. A handsome man retrieves it—it contains all her money—and returns it to her. As she stands in the rain waiting for the lights to change, he stops his car and asks her to get in. It is Philip Ashley.

CHAPTER III

Fifteen minutes later they were sitting opposite each other in a large, dimly lighted restaurant.

Karen pulled off her black gloves, declined the cigaret he offered, and looked about her. A group of people in evening clothes at a nearby table stared and whispered. They wondered, she thought, why Philip Ashley was with a girl in an inexpensive suit. They were accustomed, she thought, to seeing him with beautiful women in beautiful clothes.

With a band of cigaret smoke between them, Philip leaned forward. Karen Mallare, whoever she was, was a disturbingly lovely person, he thought. You saw, but you forgot, that her clothes were cheap. A strong sensitive face, he saw, with a stubborn chin, creamy skin that would sunburn an even gold, and clear eyes of dark blue. He thought, "I'm glad I did this rather than going to Helene's party." Sitting opposite a girl with dreams in her eyes was far more exciting than talking to people he knew too well.

"All right," he said. "What about the play? But the play isn't the thing in this case. Brenda Bond is. She could put life and fire into the worst play ever written."

Karen folded her hands. "I thought she was magnificent. I forgot everything. I kept thinking, 'To be like Brenda Bond'."

"That's what everybody thinks. To her, you see, I owe everything. Ten years ago I landed in New York with a college degree, a head full of ideas, and something less than fifty dollars. Oh, yes, and my first play. Somebody introduced me to Brenda, who read the play and insisted upon having it. She's been my pet idol and my dearest friend ever since. She's a grand lady. And speaking of her, how would you like to meet her? Now!"

"You don't mean it!"

He laughed. "Oh, but I do. A lady named Helene Ward is having a party. She's always having parties. There'll be mobs there. And Brenda will be there. She told me tonight."

"But I'm not dressed for a party."

"You look fine. Besides, there'll be so many people there nobody will notice."

Jerry had been right, Karen thought. Anything could happen here!

Their coffee and sandwiches finished, they went out of the restaurant and walked to his car. The rain had stopped. Karen thought, "Is this real? Is this really happening to me?"

"Penthouse," Philip said to the boy on the elevator.

A breath-taking ascent followed. As soon as she stepped from the elevator, Karen found herself in the largest, loveliest room she had ever seen, crowded almost to overflowing with elegantly dressed people. She was the only person here in street clothes!

She was grateful that Philip put his arm through hers, a seeming casual but thoughtful gesture, as the hostess, a tall, red-haired woman in silver, came up to them.

"Oh, Philip, you did come!"

Introduced to Karen, Mrs. Ward smiled feebly and Karen felt her coldly scrutinizing the gray suit. Her hands felt weak, her forehead hot with embarrassment. Then Mrs. Ward moved away to greet other guests arriving late.

Philip said, "There's Brenda," and guided her through the throng.

All her life she would remember walking across the great room with Philip while every pair of eyes in the room seemed to be concentrated on them. They were wondering why Philip Ashley had brought an unknown young girl in a cheap suit to one of Helene Ward's more important parties. Karen wished the floor would open and she could drop through.

Brenda, wearing black chiffon and diamonds, saw Philip and the girl in gray.

Philip said, "Brenda, I want you to meet a new and charming friend, Karen Mallare."

* * *

Brenda held out her hand and took Karen's. The girl was trembling! Poor child! Didn't Philip have better sense? Young and fresh and lovely, Karen Mallare was completely unlike the bored, sophisticated people here.

Simply, honestly Karen said, "I saw your play tonight and loved it."

"That's only the half of it," Philip said. "Later I'll tell you what did happen. Only tonight did I learn what our public suffers."

A man spoke to Brenda. Politely she turned away. Then, in the brief awkward silence that followed, Karen heard a woman remark, "Since when has Philip Ashley taken to picking up girls?" Laughter followed. Then a man said, "Since Lilyan Kane went to England. Didn't you know?"

Turning her head, Karen saw the woman who had made the remark. She was tall and dark and dressed in red. She would never forget her. In a flash she understood! Philip's bringing her here was not a gesture of kindness! He had just wanted to amuse himself, to do something different! He had known she would be made fun of!

Philip had heard, too. His jaw sharpened as he saw color wash over Karen's face. Poor kid, he thought. It was his fault. He shouldn't have brought her. He should have known there would be a pack of snobs here! But he had only meant to be kind....

Karen looked at him. "I'm going," she said in a tight voice.

"So am I. I'm taking you home."

"That isn't necessary."

He took her arm. "I brought you and I'm taking you home."

On the elevator she kept her eyes down, fighting hot angry tears. "Since when has Philip Ashley taken to picking up girls?" and the response, "Since Lilyan Kane went to England. Didn't you know?" drummed against her brain.

It had begun to rain again lightly. On the street they walked quickly to his car and when she was beside him, he turned to her. Her eyes were shining with tears. He didn't speak for a moment because he didn't remember when he had ever thought a girl beautiful when she was crying.

"Forgive me," he said. "I didn't know it would be as bad as that."

CUTS PRICE OF TOKEN FARES

Rapid Transit Announces New Rate Will Take Effect Tomorrow.

erating 11,000 more miles per month than it did in 1924, when bus and traction transportation was at its height here. It is also serving four sections of the city that were not previously covered by either bus or traction, Cook road and Woodland, Central avenue, Lily street and Hedges street.

The present transfer system will be retained under the new fare schedule, and the school children's fare will remain at 5 cents, with the adult fare, under the new plan almost as low. The pass system now being abandoned was adopted by the Ohio public Service company, predecessor of the Rapid Transit, in 1924.

"Frankly, we want more Mansfielders to ride the buses," Goodenough said, "and we think that this reduction in fare will bring about that result."

GETS 60 DAYS

Arraigned in municipal court on a charge of obtaining $3 under false pretenses, Charles King, Fifth avenue, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in county jail. Mrs. Ann Wilkins, Ashland road, who signed the affidavit, testified that King came to her home and told her that he worked with her husband She said she contracted to take four busheis of potatoes from him and that she paid him $2. He was to deliver the potatoes that afternoon but he never came back, she said.

LOOKS LIKE SQUASH BUT ISN'T, THIS NEWEST OF VEGETABLES

Among the newest of the new in fresh vegetables is a product which has been on the market only a few weeks and is known as chayote vegetable pear. It looks like a squash and is green in color, but is all meat and no seeds, vegetable dealers says. Some of the other vegetables just making an appearance on the market this week-end are anise, new potatoes, salsify or oyster plant, and dandelion greens.

All the standards are available, but the seeker of "something different" may try Brussels sprouts or Savoy, new, old, or celery cabbage in the leafy vegetable family. Other greens available now are French endive, butter lettuce, leaf lettuce, water cress, romaine lettuce, kale, and spinach.

There need be no lack of variety in the larder or on the Sunday table if the housewife will take a careful trip through her market for fresh vegetables. Some of the most recent to appear are broccoli, mushrooms, green onions, peppers, kolarabi, egg plant and artichokes.

It also is possible to obtain new naval oranges and the sweet Florida variety. There are both pink and Texas seedless grapefruit and Oregon pears and according to market reports, bananas will be selling at a lower price this week than they have been since fall The California calavo pear, all kinds of grapes in six different colors, new figs, dates and most all types of nuts, as well as a fresh crop of tangerines are now available.

DO YOU KNOW?

In the old days, the baker knew the likes and dislikes of each customer . . . he knew it to the point that once he became the 'family's baker' he held that position as long as he mixed a batter of dough or lit an oven! But today . . . * Business, AND ESPECIALLY THE BAKERY BUSINESS has reached such proportions that it is impersonal . . . that there exists among some firms the feeling, 'what do I care, as long as I make money.' Some huge firms, hundreds of miles away, and owned and controlled by speculators in Wall Street produce thousands, yes millions, of loaves of bread made of substitute ingredients and sold at a low price, and YOU BUY IT! So passed the old skilled, baker. Quality doesn't exist in such bread that is so baked . . . it is merely a matter of 'quick profit' . . . or as we might say 'bake it, and get rid of it, quick!'

BUT WE BAKERS HOWEVER, who own and personally supervise our firms are still students and ardent champions of that old school. WE DO KNOW THE LIKES AND DISLIKES OF THE CUSTOMER. WE DO USE THE FINEST AND BEST INGREDIENTS. WE DO EMPLOY SKILLED AND WELL PAID BAKER-CRAFTSMEN. WE DO EMPLOY LABOR WHICH LIVES IN THIS CITY. THAT'S WHY WE SAY, BUY MANSFIELD MADE BREAD . . . IT'S BETTER . . . IT'S BAKED BETTER

RAMS HOSTS TO KNIGHTS

Ontario Invades Lexington, Lucas at Bellville In Other Games.

By CHARLES MARTIN

Madison high's classy basketeers today awaited the invasion of the dangerous Butler Knights for a Richland county league melee tonight at 8 o'clock Both aggregations will be seeking their second straight victory.

While Madison is tackling Butler, Ontario's defending champions travel to Lexington, where they will attempt to chalk up their second triumph Lucas, which bowed to Ontario last week, will try to regain its winning stride in a tilt with Bellville at Bellville

Coach Al Fendrick's fast improving athletes face their stiffest test so far this season in the Knights Last week while Madison was walloping Bellvile, Butler was having trouble with a determined fighting Union quintet, but the Knights are expected to be back in form tonight.

Fendrick announced today that due to its showing in practice sessions this week, the reserve squad will get the call to start tonight's game.

Ontario will depend considerably on two veterans tonight against Lexington. Dick Casad, lanky center, is expected to have the tough job of guarding the Minutemen's all-county center, Richard Rule. On Matt Hager the other letterman back from last year's brilliant crew, rests the job of leading the offense

Coach Orville Kibler will be unable to accompany the team to Lexington due to illness. L C. Stingel, superintendent of Ontario high, will take over Kibler's duties for the night

Union (formerly Weller) is idle tonight, but goes to Bellville for a league game tomorrow night.

DENIES HE'S THROUGH

Carr Plans to Continue as Head Of Pro Grid League.

COLUMBUS— (AP) —President Joe F Carr of the National professional football league denied emphatically today reports that he would relinquish the presidency of the organization he founded 17 years ago "There is absolutely nothing to the reports," said Carr, who recently recovered from a serious illness

"I m feeling fine, but I've got to take it easy for a while"

No Mid-West Gridders On Mag's All-America.

Tygers Attempt Comeback On Home Hardwood Tonight

Mansfield Basketeers Meet Columbus South Club; Reserves Face Shelby.

Probable Lineups

Mansfield.		Col. South.
Lewis	F	Fitch
Scott	F	Moore
Dials	C	McLain
Mallabria	G	Golden
Lyons	G	Gillespie

MANSFIELD'S Tygers will attempt to stage a comeback on the court when they face Columbus South tonight, but victory prospects are not at all encouraging.

The Tygers dropped a hard-fought 22 to 20 decision to Akron Kenmore in the last minute in their opener last week, and tonight they face a task that is not expected to be less difficult.

Columbus Threats.

The Columbus Bulldogs romped to an easy 39 to 25 victory over Columbus Grandview last week, and established themselves as one of the stronger clubs in the city.

Whether the Bulldogs can continue at such a scoring pace is problematical, but Coach Kermit Blosser again guides a veteran club, which promises to figure prominently in central Ohio cage circles.

The chief scoring menaces on the club are Capt. McLain at center and Golden, a guard. They scored 21 of the 36 points against Grandview. Fitch, a forward, and Gillespie, another guard, are regarded as other dangerous scoring threats

While Coach Russ Murphy was not disappointed over the showing made by the green Tygers in the inaugural, he plans one change in tonight's lineup

Elmer Dials will replace Jack Dugger, who played the entire game in the opener, at center This is not a permanent move, Murphy explains, but merely an experiment

Dugger, a sophomore, shows considerable promise, but is inexperienced. Dials has seen more service, but does not compare with Dugger as a ball handler However, Dials is more rugged, and may be more valuable on the rebound.

Smith May Play.

The other positions will not be changed in the starting lineup, Murphy stated. Ike Smith, who has shown some signs of developing into a dangerous scorer, is expected to see some service at a guard position in a substitute role, according to the coach.

The Mansfield reserves will meet the Shelby Salesbook team in the preliminary game at 7:15 p. m.

ALL-AMERICA SELECTORS FIND IT HARD TO AGREE

By BILL BRAUCHER

PERFORMANCES of Cliff Battles as a professional footballer have been making the All-American selectors appear a bit odd. . . . Battles was overlooked when he lugged the leather for West Virginia Wesleyan a few years back . . . but he has been one of the greatest ball carriers to come into the pro league since Grange left Illinois.

M GOLDBERG Pittsburgh

For that matter, the differences in All-American selections this year were rather striking. . . . Captain, coaches, press associations varied widely in many of their choices. . . . Clint Frank of Yale and Byron (Whizzer) White of Colorado were almost unanimous. . . . Joe Routt, Texas A. & M. guard, also was named by most of the pickers.

The point is: If the All-American pickers can agree only on two or three men, how legitimate are the other choices?

Several teams went to press without any Big Ten talent at all on the first team, indicating that either the players were about even-Steven in ability, or that the selectors weren't looking at the right men . . . the east, for the first time in many years, dominated most of the mythical elevens.

To my mind one of the greatest backs the country has seen in years was conspicuous by his absence on several teams . . . meaning Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg, the Pittsburgh Jewish boy . . . I watched Goldberg in three games, and he was tops . . . I didn't see him make what the critics call a wrong move, and he got away for brilliant runs . . . he was in there on defense, too, whenever needed, though it must be said the Pitt line (especially the ends) didn't leave any of the halfbacks much work.

ONE selector ignored Goldberg and picked Bob MacLeod of Dartmouth . . . MacLeod demonstrated he was a great ball carrier . . . this writer has no quarrel to pick with any of the football writers, but I'd just like to know if the man who picked MacLeod also wouldn't have picked Goldberg if geography hadn't held him down . . . I mean that the writer was bound to go out and cover some territory with his All-American team, and having determined to pick MacLeod, found that he had to skip Goldberg or have too many easterners on his ball club.

Funny thing about Fordham, too . . . as I get it there were three All-Americans on that Ram eleven . . . Alex Wojciechowicz was one . . . Al Barbatsky was another . . . Ed Franco was a third . . . some pickers took Alex the center . . . others took Barbatsky the tackle . . . still others liked Franco better . . . was the determination of which man to pick influenced by excellence of men at the same position in other parts of the country? . . . such as Carl Hinkle of Vanderbilt and Jim Ryba of Alabama? . . . those who picked Ryba didn't give Joe Kilgrow, a fine back, a tumble . . . again probably all bound 'round by geography

ANOTHER phase of the All-American teams that crops up from year to year is the number of men from winning teams . . . it seems to be logical that a winning team has All-American talent . . . a great back like Cecil Isbell of Purdue, or Corby Davis of Indiana, playing on a team that took an occasional shellacking.

PREPARE TO TAP MINE FOR GOLD OF INCA KINGS

Planes Will Carry Equipment To Jungle Diggings Idle For 200 Years.

LA PAZ, Bolivia—(UP)—A rich gold mine in the jungle-covered valley of the little Tipuani river, unworked for about 200 years, will be revived soon under a scheme calling for the transportation of 1,000,000 pounds of mining equipment by air over the four-mile-high Bolivian Andes.

Owners of the mining property, the Campania Aramayo de Mines en Bolive, have signed one of the biggest air-freight contracts in the history of aviation, hoping thereby to release a rich flood of previous yellow metal which untold centuries ago poured from the depths of the "jungle valley" to the throne of the mighty Inca kings and in the 16th century, was diverted by the Spanish Conquistadores to the court of Seville.

Pan-America Grace Airways, an American concern, began transportation of the machinery at the rate of 10,000 pounds a day on Nov. 2, 1937, utilizing a tri-motored transport plane especially reconstructed to handle the heavy machinery. This plane completes the trip to the Tipuani valleye within 25 minutes, compared to 10 days on the mountain trails.

Worked by Slaves.

With the end of slavery in Bolivia came the end of mining along the "golden river." Through the past 200 years the trail over the Andean barrier used by the Incas and the Conquistadores has been lost. So inaccessible is the site, so treacherous the only path through the Andean peaks that only slave labor could make the project go. Conditions are so difficult that free men would neither work the mines nor submit to the tortures of transporting the ore across the mountains.

It is believed that aviation will solve the problem. Plans of the controlling interests are to transport trained mining personnel as well as equipment to the valley, with actual mining operations to be started within a week of the time that the last of the machinery reaches is destination.

Some progress was made in the opening of Andean mines by developing the technique of burro transportation, and also by using llamas. A breed of "supercharged" burros was brought into being. The burros were provided with extra nostrils, an extra set of holes being opened in the nasal cavity when they were young.

Housewives Sign Anti-Jap Pledges, Union Reports.

EAST LIVERPOOL.—(AP)—Pottery union headquarters here report the receipt of hundreds of "anti-Japan" pledges signed by housewives in a campaign against the purchase of Nipponese products.

The boycott was introduced by the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, an American Federation of Labor affiliate. It is directed against all Japanese-made merchandise.

To increase its effectiveness, the union had more than 15,000 pledges printed and mailed to housewives and distributed thousands of posters describing Japan as a "menace."

ICKES WARNS OF FASCIST DANGER

U. S. Secretary Hits Persons Grasping For Power and 'Greater Riches.'

NEW YORK—(AP)—A warning was out from Secretary Harold L. Ickes today that the "fascist-minded men of America," grasping for more power and greater riches, were a more real threat to the country than communists.

"It is these men who, pretending that they would save us from dreadful communism, would superimpose upon America an equally dreadful fascism," he said.

The interior secretary, in a bristling denunciation of "corporate overlords," declared at the annual dinner of the American Civil Liberties union that the supreme court had "gone far to convert the bill of rights . . . into a charter of corporate privilege."

Ickes, introduced by William Allen White, Kansas publisher, as the "Sir Galahad of the under dog in this, our national dog pound," said a worldwide struggle was under way between the forces of democracy and absolutism.

Internationale has been supplanted, he said, by a "Ku Klux Kode."

"And just as certain nations, uttering the excuse that they are stamping out communism, commit crimes at which savages would blush," he said, "so in our own land those who would undermine our democratic institutions do it under the same hollow pretense. Every candidate for office in America who lacks a real issue proceeds to shout 'communism'."

'ROCK PILE' SENTENCES GIVEN SPEEDERS BY ST. LOUIS COURT

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Speeders and drunken drivers are being given plenty of time these days to meditate on their too hasty motoring and to sober up while breaking rock at the St. Louis workhouse.

To offset the death toll in St. Louis from motor vehicles, termed by one judge as "murder in the street," City Judges James F. Nagle and Edward M. Ruddy have recently meted out more than a score of workhouse sentences within a few weeks to violators of speed laws and persons who were convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Opening the campaign against speeders and drunken drivers, Judge Nagle announced:

"Each week-end leaves new widows, widowers, orphans or childless parents by their continual murder on the public streets. It must stop. From now on the court is going to bear down on all traffic offenders."

Workhouse sentences meted out by the city judges ranged from ten days to six months. More than a score of other defenders have been assessed fines.

Speeders are fined $1 a mile for each and every mile over the speed limit of thirty miles an hour. Thus a person who was driving sixty miles an hour when apprehended by a motorcycle policeman would face a fine of $30.

One man, Floyd Stewart, was convicted of speeding, careless driving and going through a stop signal and sentenced to fifteen days in the workhouse in addition to being fined $120 and $9 costs.

MARKET MEETS SELLING AFTER MILD UPTURN

Bethlehem Steel Dips Despite Action of Directors In Voting $1 Dividend.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks met selling troubles after a mild upturn at the opening of today's market.

Bethlehem steel dipped notwithstanding action of directors late yesterday in voting a $1 dividend on the common, making total payments thus far this year $5 a share. U. S. Steel, at the same time, edged forward.

On the downside were Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, Eastman Kodak, Owens-Illinois, Westinghouse, American Smelting, Texas corporaton, and Allied Chemical.

Small gains were shown for General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of N. J., N. Y. Central, Southern Railway, Electric Power & Light and Macy.

Bonds were a bit uneven, as were commodities.

Market analysts noted a ray of hope in the week-end survey of Dun & Bradstreet.

The review found retail sales bolstered by demand for winter goods and the rush to complete Christmas shopping.

In addition to a better grade of public buying, it was pointed out advance commitments to wholesalers increased as inventories shrank and re-orders for holiday items were heavier.

The Federal Reserve board, on the other hand, reported department store sales for November failed to show the usual improvement over the preceding month.

land, and had weeks of intensive training before the vacation started.

The Mansfield girl not only is modest about the whole thing but has her fingers crossed. "Don't say anything about being with Waring," she said, "because it's just an experiment for him, and maybe the public won't like me. I've got a funny kind of voice for that kind of work, and maybe in a month or so, I'll be right back home—washing the breakfast dishes."

But whether the Waring tryout is successful or not, her friends are certain that she's "on her way up."

She's been singing since her high school days, starting her training under Florence MacDonald here. After graduating from Mansfield high school two years ago, she went to New York City with her mother for voice training, and last year continued her studies at Northwestern university. While at that school she freqeuntly sang at the College Inn, and other Chicago night clubs.

Last summer, she was a News-Journal society writer, and sang in the choir of First Presbyterian church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wilson, 35 Blymyer avenue.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON—(AP)—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.—A broader demand for domestic wools on stronger prices in foreign wool markets had a beneficial effect upon the tone of the Boston wool market yesterday. Even though buying was still on a comparatively small scale in most lines of greasy combing domestic wools, the increase in sales of fine wools was offering considerable encouragement. Prices were still irregular on the active fine wools, but there was some stiffening noted in asking prices as the lower priced lots were being gradually taken out of the market. A few lines of scoured woolen-type wools have shown a stiffening price tendency as demand continued fairly active following a decline in prices last week to levels attractive to buyers.

FILMLAND Quickies—Trying to find the manager's cottage at California ranch recently, Fred Keating was mistaken for a peeping tom. . . . In the Paramount stage show this week were both Edgar Bergen and Ken Murray. . . . They have a common interest offstage, too—Andrea Leeds. . . . Dorothy Crane, nurse for the Pat O'Brien youngsters, recently sold a story to a fan magazine on how it feels to live in a star's household. . . . Since announcing her coming trip through the canal, Eleanor Powell has received dozens of seasick remedies from fans.

Football Story.

A new story of football at Annapolis was made in the filming of "Hold 'Em Navy," which opened at the Madison theater today. The trio that carries the greatest part of the film are Lew Ayres, Mary Carlisle and John Howard. Howard and Ayres portray Navy gridiron stars. Miss Carlisle is cast in the role of Howard's sweetheart as the film opens. And then young Ayres steps in, and besides trying to take Howard's girl, attempts to win the varsity quarterback post away from him. From then on they are bitter rivals, each out to go one better than the other. Benny Baker and Elizabeth Patterson also are in the cast.

"Buddy" Rogers at Ohio.

Charles "Buddy" Rogers, in the role of a famous band leader, heads the cast of "This Way Please," showing at the Ohio through Saturday. In the film Rogers, who is playing at a large theater, falls in love with a pretty usherette. How the two finally work out their romance and help along another is told in the picture. Ned Sparks is cast as a wise-cracking press agent who falls in love with Mary Livingston (Jack Benny's Mary). They have a time trying to iron things out, but in the end Mary gets her way. Betty Grable takes the part of the girl who Rogers falls for.

"Riders of the Dawn."

Jack Randall heads the cast of the thrilling western picture "Riders of The Dawn," which appears at the Majestic Friday and Saturday with "The Shadow," a circus mystery, starring Charles Quigley. The western picture is one of quick action and romance centering around the crime wave which follows the discovery of gold in the Green Valley. Randall portrays the role of a young man sent to clean up the valley.

Rocky Mountain Thriller.

Tex Ritter and Louise Stanley are starred in the rough-riding, hard-hitting, and fast shooting drama "Riders of The Rockies," at the Ritz today and tomorrow. Learning that the border is being harried by rustlers, hero Ritter turns rustler in order to trap the band of thieves and incidentlly win Louise Stanley as the picture goes into a final fade-out. "The Duke Comes Back" is the other feature picture and the first installment of John Mack Brown in "Wild West Days" is being shown.
